telegram in the usual manner. Instead of tipping him, Mr. Skelly said, "Son, go and get the other nine, and I will give you half a dollar."

Later the oil operator took an associate to breakfast, and the check was more than $6. Bran crumbs were served for seventy cents. Mr. Skelly asked the German waiter how the hotel could afford to sell them so cheap. The latter hesitated, and then replied in deadly earnest: "I guess they make it up on the rooms."
