BOARD TO AUTHORIZE COUNTY MOTOR COPS

Expectation That Supervisors Will Allow Sheriff Two for Road Duty

Sheriff Lawrence A. Doolittle will be given authority this week by the board of supervisors, which started its June session on Monday, to engage two motorcycle riders for the summer months, according to members of the county board. They say the sheriff has asked permission to add motorcycle officers to his force and that the board realizes they are needed.

In line with its retraining program, the board of supervisors over a year ago cut off the entire appropriation for hiring of motorcycle men by the sheriff. The board, it is said, has since realized a mistake was made in this action as motorcycle men are valuable to the county, inasmuch as it is possible for them to save lives and property.

Providing the present plan is carried out, Sheriff Doolittle is expected to hire two motorcycle men about June 15 and keep them on the job for at least four months. If the motorcycle men are added the sheriff will order them to keep a sharp lookout for drunken drivers, as they invariably cause bad accidents during the summer when traffic is heavy, particularly in the lake region. The sheriff says he will recommend the maximum punishment for drunken drivers.

BAIRSTOW IS BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY

Former Waukegan Supervisor is Held on Charge of Withholding Funds

George H. Bairstow, former Waukegan supervisor, held to the grand jury last week by Justice Hervey Coulson on a charge of withholding township money. He waived preliminary examination and did not require State's Attorney Smith to present any evidence. He was released on bonds of $5,000 signed by his son, Fred, and Mark Redlein.

The complaint had been made by Supervisor Matt Dilger who defeated Bairstow at the polls two months ago.

Dilger claims that a sum of $54,695.89 is due the township and that Bairstow turned over but one check, $5,000, which was signed by M. H. Hussey.

The bondsmen for the ex-supervisor are M. H. Hussey and his son, Jerry. The bond is written for $180,000.

DEDICATE GLENCOE SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

The largest audience ever assembled at a Glencoe program was gathered in the new Public School auditorium last Wednesday night, June 8, to participate in the dedication of the new building which has just been erected through public subscription. Unbounded enthusiasm and pleasure over the new structure, was in evidence throughout the audience and particular appreciation was accorded the address given by Max Mason, president of the University of Chicago.

For the first time in several years a Glencoe audience saw the parting of curtains disclose a beautiful, spacious stage, on which was seated a most competent organization, the New Trier high school band. The band, under the direction of Mr. Cotton, received hearty applause from the audience, a response which they greatly deserved.

House Built By High School Students

The above picture shows the house that has just been completed by the boys in the Vocational Department of Deerfield-Shields High School. It is located on Beverley Court, and it faces Sunset Terrace.

This dwelling is a six room frame building with a bath, full basement, warm air heat, and balsam wool insulation. Work was begun on it on the twenty-first of last September when the surveying was done. The thirty-two boys who chose this high school course of study were divided into two shifts, each shift working three hours a day at their carpentry under the direction of their instructor, Mr. Durbahn. The students did all of the work from the excavation, form building, concrete work, carpentry, and electric wiring to the painting except the plastering which was done by Peter Grinson. The boys observed this work in order to get some idea of the trade, and they did the cabinet work in the high school shop while the plastering was drying.

Lloyd Rudolph and Paul Stipe in the morning division, and Paul De Vroeg and Stanley Burke in the afternoon section acted as time keepers, keeping a complete record of the time spent on each operation, the total amount of time put in, and the amount of material used. Leadership is encouraged, and those who have exceptional ability in shouldering responsibility and in directing the work of others are made foremen of groups of four boys, each group being assigned a definite unit of work.

The plumbing materials were furnished by Edward Strenger, who supervised their installation to comply with the city health ordinance. The material for the electric wiring was provided by Robert Greenslade, a graduate of Deerfield-Shields. The Deerfield Interior Finish Company supplied the material for the cabinet work, while the building materials were purchased from Paul Borchardt. The lumber was bought from the John Gourley Lumber Company, the paint from Brand Brothers, and the heating system from Herman Schewery. These merchants agreed to furnish materials as they were needed and to carry the accounts until the house was sold. When each year's project is completed, the School Board sets a price on it and offers it for sale to anyone who may be interested. This house was bought by George Hesler, a well known resident of Highland Park, and he has already taken possession of his new home.

As head of the entire Industrial Arts Department of Deerfield-Shields High School, Mr. Robert W. Schneider supervises the work as well as the teaching personnel of the Vocational Department. Mr. Walter Durbahn directs the carpentry work; Miss Regina Beckmire teaches a combination of Social Science and English; and Mr. Marion Richardson as charge of science and mathematics. Thus the vocational students spend only half of their day taking carpentry, while the other half of their time is devoted to a study of social science, English, science, and mathematics. The school aims to provide for these students a well rounded program which will not only fit them for some trade, but will also prepare them for their part in the community, as the classical course fits the pupil for college.

Even the carpentry work is planned from purely the educational rather than the commercial standpoint. The work for each year is mapped out along such lines as to give the most varied experience possible during the four years. The Department does not aim to make carpenters out of the boys, but it does give each boy the opportunity to find himself. Statistics show that about fifty per cent of the high school students never go to college; this course of study endeavors to provide for this number by offering pre-vocational training.

The old proverb says "The night brings counsel," but it does not seem to have brought much to the young crowd that have taken out the family automobile.

The sight of heaps of inflammable rubbish in the basements of business buildings and homes never makes a fireman feel any more cheerful.

WARM WEATHER AIDS LOCAL LAKE RESORTS

Warm weather of the past week has resulted in an influx of pleasure seekers into the lake resort district of the county and the hotels and cottages at the various lakes are teaming with life for the first time this year.

The continued cool weather deterred the opening of the season at the resorts and resulted in losses to resort owners in all sections of the county.

With the coming of warm weather indications are that the resorts will be thronged for the remainder of the summer. Reports that fish are biting at the different lakes are proving an attraction to many who enjoy this form of sport.

The hens of America should get busy, as it is going to take an awful lot of hard boiled eggs to sustain the automobile touring parties this summer.
