Our church attendance on the whole has been encouraging. To be sure, there is always room for improvement at this point. The next two months bring with them many occasions that tend to break in upon the regular attendance of church members at services on Sunday mornings. A little special thought and care to attend as regularly as possible will go a far way toward keeping our services intact and wholesomely helpful to all concerned throughout the summer months. Your special effort will be heartily appreciated. Bring your company to church with you, or invite your neighbors to come with you, if they do not attend elsewhere.

Our services are planned to be of interest and helpfulness to all who attend. We are eager to meet the deeper spiritual needs in the lives of our members and friends, and to minister to the religious needs of the community in general of which we are a part. Help us to extend our usefulness by sharing our advantages and blessings. Come and bring others.
