MODEST VIOLET STILL DEFIES PERFUME USE

While Fragrance of Other Flowers Is Limited, It Resists Duplication

Manufacturers of synthetic perfumes who, in attempting to keep at home the $100,000,000 America spends annually for scents, have equalled or improved upon the odor of the rose, the lily and other blossoms by chemical methods, but the modest violet thus far has guarded its secret from all scientists.

This is disclosed by Professor Marston Taylor Bogert, of Columbus university in an interview with the American Magazine on the synthetic perfume industry.

"Each flower has a chemical formula which, in almost every case can be reconstructed exactly," continued Professor Bogert, "but the violet contains some element which has not yet been successfully analyzed. Chemical reproduction of perfumes resulted from our inability to produce perfumes from flowers as cheaply as France with its low cost of labor. Our chemists realized that hundreds of substances with individual odors may be composed of the same elements, so the problem was to discover how many atoms of each element there were in each. No one has yet done this successfully with the violet."

Professor Bogert explains that chemical perfumes are often better than natural because chemical contents of soil, conditions of weather and advancing seasons cause variations in the scents of flowers, while the chemical formulae remain constant. Even some of the greatest French perfumers, he added, are turning to chemistry for the finer products now obtainable in Paris.

NEW GAS MEASURE IN EFFECT AUG. 1

Summary of Gasoline Tax Law Telling Provisions and How Enforced

The new gas tax measure, since it is to go into effect August 1, needs to be summarized, as everyone is interested who drives a car or sells the gas for them.

In brief, the measure provides that after July 31, 1927, every distributor of motor fuel shall make a monthly return (between the first and twentieth of each month) to the department of finance showing the amount of motor fuel he has "purchased, imported, produced, refined, compounded, manufactured, received, sold, distributed, or used during the preceding calendar month."

At the time this return is made, a license tax of two cents for each gallon of motor fuel sold during that month must be paid to the department of finance, less three per cent deduction which allows for evaporation and other loss. The money so received will be deposited in the special road fund in the state treasury, and after deducting administration expense, the department of finance will apportion to the several counties of the state fifty per cent of the net amount collected. Violations of this law are punishable by the revocation of licenses, or by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $500, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment.

It is expected that the new bill will net the state $15,000,000 annually.
