MICHIGAN NOW HAS NEW CRIMINAL CODE

SOME RADICAL CHANGES

Entirely New System of Criminal Procedure Is Instituted; Old Laws Are Scrapped

Michigan's new criminal code, said to be unique among those of the Union, will become a law on August 14, having passed both houses of the state legislature. It has been signed by Gov. Fred W. Green.

This is the only state which has prepared and adopted an entirely new code, which did not merely amend existing laws of criminal procedure, but scrapped existing statutes on criminal procedure and enacted an entire new one.

The code is simple and concise, arranged by chapters, beginning with "Arrest" and going through, chapter by chapter, to the final step, "Judgment and Sentence." It contains several radical changes, according to a dispatch in the Christian Science Monitor.

Indictment Made Simple

A respondent may maive trial by jury in case he desires, which has proved to be of value in Maryland. So far as possible, the laws of "Arrest" have been made so simple that police officers can easily familiarize themselves with them. The bail statutes have been strengthened.

Technicalities as to indictment, and the other papers necessary to file in the case, have been eliminated. A simple statement of the offense is all that is necessary. A case cannot be thrown out of court or reversed because of formal technicalities,

Possibly the main feature of the code is that it puts the responsibilold American girl, neat in appearance and ity for the disposition of the case squarely on the shoulders of the trial judge. Heretofore, in the opinion of some, he has been a sort of glorified umpire. The average trial judge with ordinary discretion should be able to handle any criminal case with dispatch and fairness, the sponsors

> Judge May Make Comment The purpose of the framers of the code was to so arrange it that the decisions of the trial judge and the verdict of the jury could only be retion. This removes from the considhension of reversals and the resulting litted supposed damage to his record. It also permits him to give the jury the benefit of his experience as federal testimony and character of the wit-19tf nesses, and assist and guide the jury in their determination. This feature has been very much emphasized as a largely with the trial judge. He fixes the minimum and the maximum is governed by the law covering the of-Appeals May Be Refused

Probation cannot be granted to a person who has twice been convicted of a felony. It will be interesting to watch this provision work out, the code writers feel, for the reason that violations of the liquor law are felonies under the state law. It is mandatory that the judge inflict heavier penalties for second and third offenders who commit felonies, and a fourth conviction means life imprisonment. Paroles cannot be granted to any but first offenders before the expiration of the minimum sentence without the consent of the sentencing judge. The question of appeals has excited comment all over the country. A great many states feel that speed is essential. The Michigan commission recognized this fact, but also took into consideration the fact that an appeal may be made directly to the State Supreme court. This is and always has been a very able court, code authors say, so the commission took a radical and different stand than other bodies. The new law will provide that an appeal is entirely within the discretion of the Supreme court. This is designed to keep this court from being overburdened with appeals that are frivolous and for delay. On the other hand, if the trial court follows out the intent of the law, the question as to whether an appeal should or should not be granted can be settled in less than 60 days. The Supreme court of Michigan does not allow criminal cases to drag on its docket. The commission believes that Subscriber Administratrix of the estate of this statute will discourage frivolous James E Fagan, deceased, will attend the Probate Court of Lake County, at a term thereof to be holden at the Court House in that should be submitted to the Su-

Mr. Orner became the railroad representative on July 26, 1902. He has made him home in Wilmette since then and has taken a great interest in all civic activities.

When he first moved to the village there were less than 3,500 persons residing there. Now the local census shows a population of approximately 17,000. In 1902, Mr. Orner reminisced there were but three sections of land in the total area of Wilmette. At present it is composed of seven sections.
