Positive At Last

The prosecuting attorney was having a difficult time with the star witness for the defense. His answers were evasive and not to the point. The judge finally cautioned him to give more precise answers. "We don't want your opinion of this case, just answer questions put to you, that's all."

"You say you drive a wagon?" asked the prosecutor.

"No, sir, I do not," came the positive answer.

"But didn't you tell me just a moment ago that you did?"

"No sir, I did not."

"Gracious! I put it to you on your oath. Do you drive a wagon?"

"No, sir."

"Then what is your occupation?"

"I drive a horse!"
