Straus & Co. Report Shows Large Amount in Improvements Outside Chicago During September

Suburban building construction in September amounted to approximately $6,000,000, showing that building construction outside Chicago is still continuing at a rapid rate.

This estimate of building, is based on the 24 principal suburbs reporting whose total volume for September was $5,582,048, according to S. W. Straus & Co., who completed a suburban survey in connection with its national monthly building survey, the total figures of which are not yet available.

BIRD GETS DRUNK ON JUICE OF BERRIES

See and Hear Strange Things In Waukegan, But Sometimes It Really Happens

Human beings are not the only ones who imbibe too freely of intoxicants. This was shown last week when a bird, a small warbler, known as an oven bird, was picked up in front of the Waukegan Daily News office, seemingly in a dying condition. When placed upon its feet, the bird wobbled about and fell on its back, utterly helpless. It was taken over to the office of William I. Lyon, expert on birds and their habits, where Mr. Lyon pronounced the bird drunk.

He explained that the oven bird feeds on berries and had probably gorged on some which were in the process of fermentation. The food would, in that case, act upon the bird the same as too much wine would affect a human being he said.

FOSSIL PLANTS ARE MILLION YEARS OLD

ARE AT FIELD MUSEUM

Notable Collection Obtained For Permanent Installation; Prehistoric Tree Trunks

A collection of fossils of plants which bloomed on the earth more than three hundred million years ago—said to be the largest collection of its kind in the west—has been received at Field Museum of Natural History, the director of the museum announced.

The collection was obtained for permanent installation in Field Museum through the courtesy of the National Museum at Washington, D. C., by Dr. B. E. Dahlgren, acting curator of botany at the Chicago institution, during a recent visit to the capitol.

There are 225 specimens of plants of the carboniferous age in the collection, and they will be placed on exhibition at Field Museum at an early date. They constitute part of the famous "Pittston" collection, 200 years ago by R. D. Lacoe of Pittston, Pa., and stored in the National Museum since 1894. These specimens were studied and identified by the noted paleo-botanists, Leo Lesquereux and David White, and their labels will be used at Field Museum.

Prehistoric Tree Trunks Included among the specimens are fossils of prehistoric tree trunks, club mosses, moss tails, ferns, and the stems, leaves, foliage and fruits of various trees and plants. The fossils indicate, Dr. Dahlgren declares, that some of these prehistoric mosses had pine-like needles more than a foot long; others had foliage like spruce trees, and still others had leaves resembling those of a century plant. Some of the ferns, he says, were much like seed-bearing plants of today; others had fruits twice the size of a plum, with stones larger than a peach pit.

In addition to becoming an exhibit at Field Museum, the collection will furnish data and material for a proposed reconstruction of a forest of the carboniferous age, showing extinct plants and trees just as they appeared in life when they flourished in the swamps of hundreds of millions of years ago, Dr. Dahlgren stated.

INSTITUTE LEGION POST AT WAUKEGAN

Delegations From Several Other Posts of County Go There Last Saturday

Led by their district commander, Edward J. McGeogh, forty-nine loyal Legionnaires of Lake county journeyed to Waukegan last Saturday afternoon and completed one of the major projects of the Lake County council of and brought to a successful conclusion something that has been talked the American Legion for this year about for the past six years, the formation of a Waukegan post of the American Legion. Leading Legionnaires from the posts at Grays Lake, Antioch, Deerfield, Lake Bluff, Fort Sheridan, North Chicago, and Great Lakes began assembling at Harry Kirwan's soft drink parlor around 2 o'clock and by three o'clock a battery of cars were drawn up and operations started. Every ex-service man of Waukegan was known and listed. Each car was sent out with four workers with instructions to locate their man and bring him in. Where the first car was unable to bring the prospect to the dotted line, shock troops, well seasoned and tried in battle in the persons of past district commander Gullie and past post commander Keough were sent out and is planned, is to cripple a national enterprise that should be encouraged to the utmost.

"If other corps areas are like the sixth, with twice the number of men applying that can be taken care of, congress ought to double the appropriation and let them in."

HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Leslie Maiman, President and Wallace Reichelt Librarian; Many Members

Officers of the high school orchestra were elected last week. Leslie Maiman is president and Wallace Reichelt, is librarian.

The orchestra's first appearance will be early in December, when it will furnish the music for the Senior Garrick club play, formerly known as the fall play. The music for last year's senior play was furnished by the orchestra, and most of the spectators seemed to enjoy it.

This year's organization includes twenty-six members. Some of last year's members have returned and will help make the orchestra a success. Mr. Dinkeloo believes he has discovered some good talent in a number of the newcomers.

More instruments are needed to make the organization a success, and Mr. Dinkeloo wants everyone that can play an instrument, suitable for the orchestra, to see him for a tryout. He hopes to make the orchestra the largest and best in the school's history.
