NORTHBROOK VILLAGE HALL IS UNDER WAY

Fine New Municipal Building To Be Opened for Use About Christmas

Northbrook, now witnessing the completion of its latest subdivision, a forty-acre tract in the southwestern section of the village, and which has negotiations well under way for obtaining lake water from the new Glencoe pumping plant as soon as it is completed, is also boasting a new Village hall which it will formally dedicate about Christmas time.

The new structure is located at the southwest corner of Wolters avenue and First street. The brick work is now underway. It is to be a combined village hall and fire station. The first story is being constructed with a view of adding a second story, when it is required, and Northbrook citizens say they realize that if the village continues to grow at the rate it has been forging ahead the past two years it will not be long.

The village board is looking into the future in its building plans, even beyond the addition of a second story to the building now being erected. At such a time as it shall have been outgrown, it is the purpose of the municipal planners to use this building as a public library and erect a still larger and more up-to-date Village hall.

WELL KNOWN GLENCOE WOMAN DIES IN EAST

Glencoe has been saddened this week, by the loss of a beloved citizen in the person of Mrs. Mabel Rowley Barnett, who died October 15, at Glenn Springs Sanitarium, Watkins Glen, New York.

In her immediate family she leaves her husband, Otto Raymond Barnett; her sons, Lawrence Theodore Barnett and Sherman Rowley Barnett, and their families. Two children were lost in infancy. These are two grandchildren, Barbara Kay Barnett and Lawrence Theodore Barnett, Jr.

Mrs. Barnett was the daughter of Sherman C. Rowley, a veteran of the Civil war and Ellen Carter Rowley. She was born in East Claridon, Ohio, on July 16, 1869. She came to live in Glencoe immediately after her marriage in 1895.

FARMERS ASK FOR INJUNCTION ON DAM

OPPOSES THIRD LAKE PLAN

Nine Property Owners In That Locality Petition Court For Action; Fear Damage To Land

Nine farmers owning land draining into Third and Druce lakes last week filed a petition for injunction in the circuit court demanding that the proposed construction of a dam to raise the levels of Third lake 21 inches be halted to prevent the inundation of their properties.

The dam is proposed, according to the bill filed by Judge Martin C. Decker in behalf of Carlisle Druce, Edward J. Druce, Peter Christensen, Charles Parker, Edward Parker, Earl Barron, Phillip J. Exon, Clarence Doolittle and Wilmer Brewer, is to be erected on the channel that connects the two lakes which raise, it contends, the water level 21 inches higher than it was on August 10, 1927.

The petition is directed against M. Blanchard, Charles Smale and Attorney Coral Heydecker. Anthony Fredson has the material on the ground and is ready to start work, the petition recites.

There are two inlets to Third lake, it is stated, with one of them being in the form of a stream that flows through the lands of all the farmers mentioned with the exception of Brewer's properties which drain into Druce lake.

A dam, the petitioners charge, would stop the natural drainage, causing the land, which they hold as under a high state of cultivation and valued in excess of $200 per acre, to become flooded, soggy and not conducive to good crops.

Immediate action is asked because the petitioners contend that the dam could be completed within a short space of time.

LOVE OF EDUCATION IS NOT FILLING COLLEGES

So Says Dean Gauss of Princeton Who Thinks Many Youths Go for Playtime

Dean Christian Gauss of Princeton is not sure that the huge increase in college enrollment is due to a commendable desire on the part of American youth for higher education. Writing in "Should Johnny Go to College?" in the October Scribner's Magazine, he says:

"I believe there is one point which the public has failed signally to understand in the present 'rush to the colleges.' Many have told us that this rush results from a deeper realization of the value of college education which was demonstrated during the war. It may be so in part. There is, however, another and a far simpler reason. Young men and young women prefer the society of other young men and women to the society of their elders. With the general obscuring of the colleges' original purpose and function, it has unfortunately become a kind of glorified playground. It has become the paradise of the young.

"If, nowadays, you give a boy of eighteen the option of going into his father's office or of going to college, on the assumption that in every case they are equally good things to do, he will therefore in almost every case choose college. It is almost never true, however, that they are equally good things to do. We have tried to explain that it depends upon him."

BRING BACK MEXICANS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Ampelio Castaneda, who with Francisco Arroyo and Marie Ortiz is under arrest charged with the dual murder of Guadalupe Gonzales and Julio Gerra in Market street, Waukegan, on the night of October 7, has confessed that he fired the twelve shots into the bodies of Gonzales and Gerra. Detective Sergeants Bart Tyrrell and William MacDonald announced last week upon their return from Pontiac, Mich.

The local detectives arrived at Waukegan with their two prisoners Wednesday night at seven o'clock after stopping off a day in Detroit where they searched for a second woman who is said to have witnessed the double shooting. The Ortiz woman was returned for trial by train Tuesday in custody of Mrs. Sarah Showers.

OLD NORTH SHORE RESIDENT IS DEAD

Christian W. Braun, one of the oldest north shore residents passed quietly away following a two weeks' period of declining health at the age of 80 years at his home, 2135 Lake avenue, Wilmette on Monday of this week. Simple and impressive rites were conducted from the St. Joseph church last Wednesday and Mr. Braun was laid to rest in the St. Joseph cemetery.

Christian W. Braun was born on February 27, 1847, in a log cabin located on what is now Blum street in the old Gross Point section of the village.

NEED TIME TO PLAN FOR FLOOD RELIEF

Special Session of Congress Is Not Warranted, Says Engineer

Major General Jadwin, chief of the Army Engineers, in recent official statements, has made it clear that an early session of Congress called for flood relief purposes, would have been a waste of time and energy, as well as money. Because of the lack of exact data as to what should be done, and how it should be done, the President has approached this flood problem not so much with the thought of repairing the damage that is done, but involving a plan of construction which will make impossible the recurrence of the recent catastrophe.

The problem of patching the levees where breaks have occurred, draining areas where flood waters have settled, and even that the restoring people to their lands, is not an over-elaborate undertaking, and can and could be figured in a relatively short space of time. President Coolidge, however, has let it be known, that the status quo of the pre-flood period does not satisfy him. He has a natural aversion to spending money for merely patching purposes, thus leaving the major problems unsettled.

The problem of how not only to repair, but to prevent floods is what the President has set before the army authorities, but General Jadwin admits that he will need all the time up to the regular assembling of Congress to get that data into shape.

WINNETKA WATER FOR GLENCOE TILL APRIL

The Winnetka village council Tuesday evening approved an agreement with the village board of Glencoe to furnish that village with water service from September 1, 1927, the expiration of the five year contract, to April 1, 1928, at which time Glencoe expects to have its new water works plant completed. The rate is to be that now prevailing, 12 cents per thousand gallons. It is also being planned to continue the connection of Village mains at Scott and Linden avenues, after the completion of the Glencoe plant, for the purpose of providing reciprocal emergency service, it was explained.
