"COUNTESS MARIYZA"
AT OLYMPIC THEATER
Comedy Opera Hit Opens In Chicago Next Sunday Evening

Gypsy life, gypsy love and gypsy melodies play a large part in the development of the plot of "Countess Maritza," which opens at the Olympic theater, Sunday, Nov. 6. There is a gypsy chief, and, it is announced a host of pretty gypsy girls, and even a genuine Hungarian gypsy orchestra utilized in the action of the story, but the outstanding Romany personality is Manja, a gypsy girl who is both temperamental and tempestuous, and, very fittingly, the role is played by an artiste who is fitted both by race and training to visualize the character. It is not difficult for those who are acquainted with the work of the many-sided Odette Myrtill to visualize her in the role of a gypsy whose moods are as variable as the weather was in August. Miss Myrtill's slight foreign accent, her exceptional powers of interpretation and her skill as a violinist, which the role of the gypsy requires, is said to have made her one of the most notable of those who won success in "Countess Maritza" during its long run in New York. With Walter Woolf, Harry K. Morton and Gladys Baxter, Miss Myrtill is assuredly in good company.

One of our friends remarked the other evening that if this trans-Atlantic flying keeps on getting more hazardous all the time he is going to send his mother-in-law on an air voyage to Paris.

A London prisoner seeking to escape from jail in a woman's outfit was detected and recaptured. Such a disguise isn't as good as it was in the days of long skirts.
