

WINNETKA PLANS TO AMEND ZONE MEASURE

REDISTRIBUTE APARTMENTS

Proposal Introduced in Council Last Week and Being Considered Seriously; May Cause Battle

An amendment to the zoning ordinance restricting almost to the point of prohibiting the building of apartments in Winnetka, was introduced at the village council meeting last week. It provides that buildings shall not be more than two stories high; that the first floor shall contain stores and that 50 per cent of the second floor space shall contain either stores or offices. The remaining 50 per cent, which may be apartments, shall not contain less than three rooms, each, and only one family is permitted to occupy an apartment. The building will not be permitted to take up more than 90 per cent of the lot area. The maximum height is retained at 35 feet.

Hearing January 9
The amendment to the ordinance was presented by Trustee Doris D. Benson, chairman of the plats and zoning committee, ordered posted and, as provided by the zoning ordinance, referred to the Winnetka Zoning commission for recommendation, following a public hearing. The hearing has been set for Monday evening, January 9, at 8 o'clock, in the council chamber.

The proposed amendment is the outcome of a public hearing held a few weeks ago to consider the advisability of an ordinance reducing the number of families permitted per acre in "C" commercial zoned area. At present, the number is 72.

May Bring Fight
No estimate was ventured as to what the reduced number would be under the provisions of the proposed amendment but it was evident from the discussion among members of the council that, like those who attended the hearing and "viewed with alarm" the encroachment of apartments in Winnetka, the trustees regard with considerable concern the outcome of the proposed amendment. The question of its legality was referred to and it was admitted a fight against it is quite probable.

SELF-PRESERVATION DOMINATES HUMANS

Not Sex Instinct, as Claimed By Freud, Says Writer in Scribners

Many fears death but he will risk death to preserve his self-respect, declares Doctor George Draper in an article in the first number of the new Scribner's Magazine.

Doctor Draper, after much research and clinical experience, states his conclusions in Scribner's to the effect that self-preservation, contrary to the Freudian philosophy, is more important than the sex instinct.

"Biologically, from the standpoint of the species, death is essential to life, but the individual vital organism concerned with self-preservation cannot readily accept the truth," writes Doctor Draper. "The urge of living things is toward life, and death therefore is an untenable concept for those that live. Consequently, the insignia of death act as a warning to the living to take what steps they may to preserve themselves. The fear of death makes you put your rubbers on when it rains and obey the traffic policeman at Broadway and 42nd street. Yet such protections of the physical being are instantly disregarded by men and women if they retard an effort to rescue the life or limb of another. We readily sacrifice these physical members to save our souls."

"Now this business of saving our soul is, as far as we know, an interest which the earthworm and mudfish do not, at least consciously, share with us. The human being, however, is acutely, almost physically, aware of his psychic individuality. Indeed, as has already been pointed out, the maintenance of this sense of wholeness of self is his most vital need, for which he is ready at any time to sacrifice a limb or even life itself."

Many lost articles reported during the Christmas rush, among which were a good many lost tempers.

INDUSTRIAL GROWTH OF SOUTHERN STATES

GREAT PROGRESS NOTED

Tennessee Valley Likely to Become Ruhr of America; Cause of Shifting Conditions in This Region

Few people perhaps, excepting those living in the territory affected, realize the great industrial change that is taking place in the U. S. Formerly we looked to New England, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio as our chief manufacturing states. The automobile business gave Michigan a place in the industrial sun, and now the industrial map of the nation is changing again. At present the manufacturer seems to have his face turned to the South. North and South Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee are rapidly becoming industrial states.

In a recent address, E. H. Hooker, president of the Hooker Electro-Chemical company of New York, declared that the Tennessee valley will become the "Ruhr of America." He added that the national industrial center is shifting to the Mississippi valley and South Atlantic and pointed out that the Southern states, once interested almost wholly in plantations, were now demanding power to run manufacturing plants. The gulf ports, he said are already hoping to become rivals to New York and Boston "for the shifting market from Europe to South America and the Orient by way of the Panama Canal is opening up a new industrial way of the world." With the development of power in the south, Mr. Hooker declared that the change would be even more rapid than at present.

Reserve Supply Ample
All of which is of course true and significant in more ways than one. The shifting of the industrial map is bound, sooner or later, to cause a shift in the political map. For as the industries in the south increase the southern states will continue more and more to demand protection. The trend has already set in and political students tell us that nowhere has the sentiment for the protective tariff grown as fast during the past ten years as in the south. And the demand for a tariff coming from the former free trade states does not manufacture industries there. The come exclusively from the infant farmers and fruit growers want a tariff, too, to protect their interests from the cheaply grown fruit of the nearby tropics and from the increasing shipments of vegetables coming in from Mexico and the islands near the southern coast of the U. S.

Just how this change in conditions will affect the political parties cannot of course be foretold. For the tariff is not the partisan issue that it was case. The doctors are discussing the causes of deafness. Some cases are probably caused by hearing too much cheap talk.

The World war is supposed to have cost this country $35,000,000,000, and yet some people don't think it necessary to take any steps to prevent getting into war again.

MR. SPECKLES' GREAT IDEA

Santa Claus sat on a bench next to the sunny side of his North Pole bungalow. The old gentleman wore a worried and harassed look quite foreign to his usual jovial expression. Sam Speckles, a foreman in one of Santa's toy shops, passed by and noticed the good old saint. "What's the matter, Santa?" he asked.

"This job's getting too big for one man," answered Santa. "The world's getting better and better all the time, and that means I have that much more work to do, and it's getting to be a mighty hard task to make things enough to go around, let alone distributing them."

Mr. Speckles scratched his head. "Well," he said, "here's an idea, and I think it's a mighty good one. Remember that fine magazine full of stories and pictures and nice things you had the other day?" "Oh, you mean The Youth's Companion," said Santa. "Yes, that's it," answered Sam. "Well, it seems to me that if you'd tell a lot of parents about that magazine and how fine and enjoyable it was for boys and girls they'd give subscriptions to The Youth's Companion as a Christmas gift to lots of young folk, and that would help you a lot."

"That's a mighty good idea," said Santa, "and, as a matter of fact, many parents do just that already, but—" Santa sighed, "I wish that more of them realized what a fine gift The Youth's Companion makes, and would give it, too."
Just send your order to the address below, and we will see to it that our Uncle Sam relieves Santa of the burden of delivering at least one gift. Subscribers will receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—32 big monthly issues in 1928, and

Formerly people used to think they could get ahead by industry and thrift, but now the idea is to put a bill into congress or the state legislature to look after the difficulty.
