

ILLINOIS R. O. T. C. GREAT AID IN WAR

RECORDS OF UNIVERSITY

Facts Given Out Show Number of Men Who Gave Service During Great Conflict; Details

Prominent part which the Reserve Officers Training corps of the University of Illinois played in furnishing the United States army, navy and marine corps with 3,280 trained officers with the entrance of America into the World war, is told in the final check which has just been completed.

In addition to 2,992 officers sent into the army alone, the university supplied also 970 non-commissioned officers and 1,560 enlisted men. All received at least two years' military training as students, while many of the officers received two or three years of training and needed little more when the call to service came.

Many High Officers

A total of 263 officers who served in the navy went directly from the university, as well as 575 others of non-commissioned and enlisted grades. Twenty-five officers and sixty-five enlisted men served in the marine corps.

Included in the university's list of army officers were two major-generals, four brigadier generals, eleven colonels, twenty-nine lieutenants, 132 majors, 624 captains, 873 first lieutenants, and 1,317 second lieutenants.

"To my mind this record stands as a justification of the position we have taken in regard to compulsory military training in the university," President David Kinley said.

Follows Federal Law

"The federal government in 1862 took steps to prevent a recurrence in part at least of the mistakes and disastrous events that occurred early in the Civil war because of the scarcity of trained officers. The Morrill land grant, which gave our great institution of learning its initial impetus, was a far-seeing instrument, and I think the record of the university justifies the idea that underlies that provision of the act which provides for military training.

"Without the training that the University of Illinois gave the 3,280 officers, part of this number at least would never have been able to serve their country as they did."

There are so many lovely desserts in the line of custard that we are able to make quite a variety and have them all well worth our efforts, but the recipe for Baked Custard Caramel which I am giving you is really deserving of the name "Custard De Luxe."

You will notice that this custard calls for four eggs to one pint of milk, while the usual proportion is two eggs to a pint. This makes a firm custard which may be turned out on a serving dish and retain its shape.

The caramel becomes hard when placed in the bottom of the baking dish, but the baking changes it into a thin syrup which covers the custard when turned out to serve.

The serving dish should be large enough to take care of the syrup and, with the whipped cream placed over it with a pastry tube, or in peaks with a spoon, it makes a very attractive dish for the table.

BAKED CUSTARD CARAMEL

4 eggs
1 pint milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teas salt
1/2 teas vanilla
1/2 cup sugar for caramel.

Melt the one-half cup sugar in a small pan over the fire, stirring constantly until it melts. Do not have fire too high, and be careful that it does not become too brown, or the flavor will not be so delicate.

Pour this at once (before it hardens) into a well-greased baking dish and set aside while preparing the custard. Usually we beat the eggs very little for a custard, but I beat the eggs for this until they are thick and light colored. Then I beat the sugar into the beaten eggs and add the other ingredients.

Pour custard into the baking dish over the caramel, set in a pan of hot water and bake at 325 until firm or until the point of a knife will make a clean cut. This will require one hour or more. Do not bake too long, as too long baking or too high a temperature will make a custard separate. This should be firm, but very fine and delicate. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

URGE CONSERVATION FOR ALL OF AMERICA

IS WALTON LEAGUE AIM

Plan International Playground In Minnesota and Ontario Another Step in Purpose of Group

"Conservation for all of America" is the slogan adopted by the Isaac Walton league, national outdoor recreation organization, which recently announced a campaign to establish an international playground in northern Minnesota and southwestern Ontario, according to national officials of the league.

This move came on the heels of the beginning of a strenuous campaign by the league throughout the west to save millions of ducks from death by alkali water poisoning. It is claimed that from ten to fifteen million ducks have died there during recent years.

Is One More Step

"The international playground project is one more step in the program of the Walton league to help dedicate the outdoors to the health and happiness of all of the people, rather than to any narrowly confined class of sportsman," declared Fred H. Doellner, general manager of the organization. The western ducks must be saved in order to not only insure continued shooting in the west, but to stop a terrific drain on the wild duck resources of America, he pointed out. "This move," he said, "is primarily in the interest of the sportsmen, but we also recognize that the wild life is a benefit, in many ways, to the entire citizenship, and is becoming more so every year. Good, clean, outdoor sport is the very basis of American character. It must be preserved as a national characteristic."

Combats Pollution

In the east the league is combatting pollution of waterways both to provide for fishing and to promote general health, it was pointed out.

Flood control is receiving the attention of the league in the Mississippi valley, where Walton league chapters in the headwaters of many streams are forming ponds and artificial lakes to control waters and to provide recreation places, Mr. Doellner said.

Some automobile drivers think they can offset the danger created when they drive faster, by putting on a louder automobile horn.
