ST. PAUL EXPERIENCE WITH SUPER-POWER

When Generator Fails Hook-Up With Other Stations Is Life Saver

The electric lights in St. Paul, Minn., city flickered a little while during the afternoon of January 3. Then they resumed their normal intensity and the social, commercial and industrial life went along on its even tenor.

Back of this flicker-the momentary interruption—was the failure of an electric turbo-generator supplying a large portion of the electric light and power required by the people of this city. That the city was not without light and power was due to "superpower"-the interconnection of generating stations by high-voltage transmission lines.

Instantly aware of the failure, the power dispatcher for the electricity supply company telephoned to a hydro-electric plant at Wissota, Wisconsin, a hundred miles away. He asked that 6,000 additional horsepower be sent to St. Paul on the connecting superpower line. It was.

Nearby a steam plant had generators idle—the fires banked in its generators were in service, sending power along the wires to help supply the needs of the city.

Dusk came and more current was needed. The load dispatcher asked for and obtained 10,000 horsepower from St. Croix Fall and 3,000 horsepower from St. Cloud. Later, La-Crosse, Wisconsin, furnished 3,000 horsepower.

Telling of the incident, The Minneapolis Morning Tribone comments that the city would probably have been plunged into darkness for many hours had it been served by a municipal electric plant instead of by a privately-owned company which was able to take advantage of the principles of superpower.

But a lot of us buy blue sky securities long after we have passed that tender age.

is the daily visit to the bathroom whose appointments are modern in every detail. Such a bathroom is not a luxury, for the small cost of installation is completely overshadowed by the greater cleanliness, comfort, and convenience, which fixtures of modern design make possible. We shall be glad to submit an estimate.

RED-LEAVED BARBERRY

Never before has the introduction of a novelty in hardy shrubs met with greater approval and success than this - The New Red-Leaved Japanese Barberry.

The foliage of this new variety is of a rich, lustrous, bronzy red, which becomes more brilliant and gorgeous throughout the summer and in the fall changes to vivid orange and scarlet shades, more effective than any other colored shrub. This coloring is followed by brilliant scarlet berries which remain on the plant all winter.

The supply of this new and worthy variety is very limited. Order yours early.

MISSING WINNETKA CHILDREN RESTORED

WANDERED SOUTH WARD

Paisley and Teddy Rockwell Lost All Day, Found Sleeping ing Under Shrubs; Quest Stirs All North Shore

Perhaps the brightest ray of light that ever flashed over Winnetka was that of the police signal last week indicating their recovery to the hundreds of searchers who were at that moment scouring the vicinity for miles around in quest of two lost children.

Paisley Rockwell, the eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Rockwell, of 277 Chestnut street, taking her little five year old brother, Teddy, with her, had started out Thursday of last week to walk to Chicago and failed to notify her parents.

Discovers Absence

When Mrs. Rockwell called at the Horace Mann school at noon for her children and learned that they had not been in school during the forcnoon, she notified the police.

As the day wore on and still no clue to the missing children was obtained, concern for their welfare in-

The five troops of Winnetka Boy scouts joined the searchers and by evening more than three hundred men were scouring the village and far beyond its confines in organized | field. search.

News of the missing children was being boadcast from radio stations. Citizens of the neighboring villages of Glencoe and Wilmette were organized into groups, working in their respective territories.

Sleeping in Shrubs

Then, at 10 o'clock, word was received from the Rogers Park police station that the children had been found at 6981 Sheridan road, where, thoroughly exhausted from the ten mile hike, they had crawled under the shelter of some shrubs and had fallen asleep.

"PEGGY ANN" PROVES DELIGHTFUL COMEDY

Helen Ford and Splendid Cast Star in Performance at Selwyn Theatre

The Selwyn theater, Chicago, has for its attraction a Broadway success in the personof "Peggy-Ann" as unfolded by Helen Ford and her merry horde of entertainers. It is described as a chipper piece of amusement with smart verse, lovely music and an animated chorus. A sprightly and imaginative musical comedy far from the familiar mould. It is the latest opus from the nimble co-operation of Herbert Fields, Riehard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart. This trio has jumped into prominence with rapid strides and their merry efforts as exemplified in "The Garrick Gaieties," "Dearest Enemy" and "The Girl Friend," have met with marked approval by discriminating audiences.

"Peggy-Ann" is about a poor little girl who dreams of being rich. It travels a path to romance land that is quite original. It is bedecked with ultra-modern jazz, a variety of settings and costumes that are nothing short of exquisite, something really quite novel in the world of the footlights. There are many changes of scene for Peggy-Ann's tour in imagination, leading her from New York to Havana, and several places in between that are not strictly on the map. Her dream takes her to a weird Fifth Avenue of topsy turvy buildings and erratic traffic signals, to a department store, where all the clerks speak their minds to the customers. Then to a private yacht, a shipwreck, races at Havana, and other highly fantastic scenes, sometimes the sheerest, most delicate whimsy, sometimes the most delightful sort of nonsense.

Helen Ford in the star role has made the greatest success in her career. The supporting company is headed by the well known and versatile comedian Lulu McConnell, and the associate players are Marion Trabue, Betty Starbuck, Margaret Breen, Louis Joyce, Lester Cole, Fuller Mellish, Jr., Starke Patterson, Patrick Rafferty, Murray Queen and others. The famous Vanderbilt theater chorus is one of the main features with the attraction.

There is a melodious and captivating score of musical numbers including "A Tree in the Park," "A little Birdie Told Me So," "Where's That Rainbow," "Maybe It's Me" and "Give This Little Girl a Hand" with ravishing dance accompaniment.

Lew Fields and Lyle D. Andrews are presenting "Peggy-Ann" with all the Vanderbilt theater decor and embellishments.

Of course we will admit that the pioneers had wolves and Indians to contend with but at that we don't know that these were much werse. than bootleggers and reckless motor

MR. BECKER TELLS HOW TUNNEL IS MADE SAFE

"Years ago, when buggies and bustles were in vogue, the prediction that you might some day drive your automobile under the mighty Hudson River, would have been greeted with amused smiles," said W. Becker" local Exide Dealer. "Your friends would have considered either crazy or full of old-fashioned grape juice. Yet, today, thousands of motorists drive under the Hudson River through the recently opened Holland Tunnel, the new, river-bottom connecting link between New Jersey and New York. They do so with complete confidence of their safety through the close co-operation the Tunnel engineers with those The Electric Storage Battery Company, extra safety precautions have been assured by the use Exides in the ventilating towers, to guide the tube traffic, to operate the ecommunication system and also to Woods Subn.
