JOHN WESTERN WRITES OF RECENT TRIP SOUTH

Begins Series of Articles Describing Motor Tour to Florida

John Western has written a series of articles on his recent trip to Florida, of which the following is the first:

Mrs. Western, our son Rollo and his wife and your humble servant left our home near North Shore cemetery on the morning of St. Valentine's Day on our trip to the Southland. Our drive to Indianapolis was uneventful. The next morning we visited Crown Hill cemetery, Indiana's most noted place of human interment.

Crown Hill, the highest place in Marion County, is within the limits of this cemetery. For the second time I had the privilege of visiting the grave of my old friend James Whitcomb Riley. It is quite remarkable that until Riley passed away nobody had thought of securing the very summit of Crown Hill for a burial place. The tomb which has been erected over Riley's grave since my first visit to the same, commands a charming view of the surrounding country. We paused for a moment at the grave of the late Senator Beveridge. Albert Beveridge was one of the brilliant men of this country for many years. My last talk with him was by long distance telephone from our Illinois home. At the time of the Senator's death he was engaged upon what all his friends expected would be a monumental life of Abraham Lincoln, having previously prepared the most noted biography of former Chief Justice John Marshall. Thousands of Americans regret that Albert Beveridge was not spared to complete the great work to which he was bonding his energies at the time of his death. In Crown Hill we saw the tombs of former Vice-Presidents Fairbanks and Marshall. Two days later we had the privilege of spending two or three hours in the most noted cemetery south of Mason & Dixon's Line—Cave Hill cemetery of Louisville, Ky. On the fourth day of our pilgrimage we drove through a snowstorm from Louisville to the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln and thence to Mammoth Cave. At Lincoln's birthplace—Hodgenville, Ky.—we saw many robins, cardinals and other birds which reminded us of spring in the North. The two and a half hours which we spent in Mammoth Cave was an experience never to be forgotten. Twenty thousand persons entered the Cave by the new entrance last year and it is probable that fully as many entered by the old entrance. I never read any attempted description of the scenes in this natural wonder, and it is impossible to adequately convey a proper idea by mere words.

After a night spent at Bowling Green we drove to Chattanooga, which held our interest for an entire day. Chattanooga is the most picturesque city in the South. It is built at a bend of the Tennessee River and is surrounded by mountain scenery, almost every foot of which was fought over by the contending forces in the Civil War. Hundreds of monuments have been erected by military organizations from various States to mark the spot where their respective regiments or divisions fought. Missionary Ridge and Look-out Mountain are spots which should not be forgotten by patriotic Americans.

There are a lot of people who will never be happy until they have lost a lot of money in the stock market.

FROM TRAIN BURIED

The Potters field at Kenosha now holds the body of James Bradley, 49, who jumped last week from a train window on the Northwestern at the state line in order to elude the deputy taking him back to Paintsville, Ky., to be electrocuted for the murder of his brother-in-law, two years ago.

Bradley's family, a wife and eight children, were notified of the death of their husband and father. They are destitute and homeless near a lumbering camp at Mackinaw, and were unable to attend the burial.

Bradley was twice a murdered and had once assaulted a sheriff with a knife, police said.

When he killed his brother-in-law he had been convicted and sentenced to be electrocuted but he and four others broke jail at Paintsville. From there he worked his way to Marquette and Mackinaw and was not taken until he had killed a negro and wounded the sheriff in a saloon brawl.

NEW CATTLE DISEASE IS FOUND IN STATE

A dangerous cattle disease, known as contagious pyelonephritis, heretofore unknown in Illinois, was discovered a few days ago in Fayette county by cattle experts from the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

It is impossible to judge the significance of the disease, due to inability to trace the source of infection, declared Dr. Robert Graham, animal hygienic expert at the college. It does mean, he said, that a contagious kidney disease exists, which breeders and herd owners of the state must recognize.

Two Ways to Spend Money on Streets

One is to keep on resurfacing and patching an old pavement. This is expensive, and the street is never satisfactory—never smooth.

The other is to repave with portland cement concrete. This is economical, because concrete is rigid and strong. It stays smooth as built. It is the safest pavement in bad weather.
