 1 box strawberries.
 1 cup sugar.
 1/4 box or 1 tablespoon granulated gelatine.
 2 tabs. cold water.
 3 tabs. boiling water.
 1 quart cream.

Wash and hull berries, sprinkle with sugar and let stand one hour. Mash and rub through fine sieve and add gelatine which has been soaked in cold water and dissolved in boiling water. Set in pan of ice water and stir until it begins to thicken, then fold in whipped cream. Put into mold and freeze. Raspberries, peaches or shredded pineapples may be used instead of strawberries.

ANNUAL MOSQUITO WAR STARTS ON NORTH SHORE

Annual war against the mosquito will be started along the North Shore and in the Skokie Valley district on May 1, and indications are that many thousands of dollars will be expended by the fight to eliminate this pest.

Drainage of the Skokie marshes, one of the prolific breeding grounds for this insect, is one of the major projects contemplated in the war and it is expected that when these lowlands are dry that the number of insects which invade Lake county each year will be considerably lessened.

The various mosquito abatement districts along the North Shore contemplate spending large sums of money in the fight this year. Heads of these groups believe that if the fight is to be carried on it should be made as thorough and relentless as possible.

TARIFF DEMANDED BY BRITISH BODY

COTTON SPINNERS AKS IT

Experience Shows Value of Protection to American Industries; Value Better Realized

Present reports from Great Britain recently carried the interesting fact that the Yorkshire Cotton Yarn Spinners and Doublers Association has requested the spinners point out that their foreign competitors can dump yarn into England at a less price than the home manufacturer can afford.

Now England has for generations been known as a free trade country. John Bull has boasted of his principles and of the fact that they made Great Britain the greatest trader in the world. But the British are a practical people and they never have permitted a general theory, like that of free trade, to interfere with the realities of life. For this reason they have from time to time used the tariff to stabilize a particular home industry, when such stabilization was necessary.

Complaint Interesting

The complaint of the yarn spinners is an interesting one. Over on the continent there are many countries where the cost of living and the wage scale are lower than in England. Without a tariff in Great Britain it is easy to see that a well organized continental yarn industry might easily flood the English market with yarn at a price cheaper than the British could afford to make it.

Now if certain tariff schedules are needed in England it must be true that they are all the more needed in the United States where there is a much higher wage scale and a much more attractive market. The difference is, too, that in the United States we are now pretty definitely committed to the protective policy regardless of politics, while in Great Britain the theory of free trade predominates, although protection is at times employed when needed.

No Room For Argument

There is no longer much room for argument over the question that the United States needs a tariff equalling the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad. We need this for our farms as well as our industrialists. That the farmer is beginning to realize this need is evidenced by the demand this is coming from various parts of the country for protection on certain specific crops. These demands come from the south as well as the north and west. The farmers, fruit and produce growers of Florida, for instance, well realize that they have to have some protection against cheap importations from Cuba and other nearby islands where the cost of production and standard of living is lower than in Florida.

That is why we now frequently hear the assertion that the tariff map is changing. The people of the south, as their industry and specialized agriculture develop, are beginning to realize more and more the necessity of the protective tariff.

MODERN WOMAN IS ECONOMICAL BUYER

Shopping by women is assuming an increasingly important place in the realm of national economy and the conscientious shopper works harder than most men, New York mercantile experts have discovered.

"The woman who shops all day in crowded stores actually works harder than the farmer who ploughs a ten acre field," says the American Magazine. "She remains under one roof but covers more ground than the farmer, for the area of a big department store's floors is from fifteen to thirty acres. And the shopper's savings compare well with the man's earnings."

Experts also have found that the modern woman on the average is a far more economical shopper than her mother or grandmother. This is attributed to the fact that most young brides held down jobs of their own and learned how hard a dollar came and how far it went before they took over the task of handling their husbands' money. The modern housewife also, it is pointed out, is weary of buying cheap goods at cheap prices believing them bargains and as a result purchase more wisely than their mothers.

DR. BECK IS RENAMED AS COUNTY PHYSICIAN

Dr. Karl M. Beck, county physician, today was rehired for another year by the board of supervisors.

In their unanimous vote they recommended that the chairman, Thos. Murphy, and clerk, Lew A. Hendee, and hospital committee enter into the same contract as the one expiring in July which calls for $5,000 annually.

His position covers the superintending of the county hospital, county physician, contagions, etc.
