Miss Elizabeth Webster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Towner K. Webster, Jr., of Winnetka, whose marriage to Sturtevant Hinman will take place on October 13, at 4:30 o'clock, at Christ church, with the Rev. Ashley Gerhard officiating at the ceremony, has chosen Mrs. Perry Buchanan (Catherine Hinman) for her matron of honor. Miss Helen Oakley of Montclair, N. J., will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids are Miss Fanny K. Young of Ashtabula, Ohio, Miss Dorothy Barrett of White Plains, N. Y., Miss Constance E. Green and Miss Jane P. Bertschy of Dayton, Ohio, and Miss Jeanette Keller of Evanston. Miss Oakley, Miss Young, Miss Bertschy, Miss Green and Miss Barrett are all coming from Connecticut college, which Miss Webster attended last year, to be in her wedding party.

A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Strong, 1077 Tower road, Hubbard Woods.

Mr. Hinman has asked Norman Hinman of Barrington, Ill., to be his best man and the ushers include George W. Dawson of Dulhath, Texas, George Giles, LaGrange, Ill., Roger Sherman and Perry Buchanan of Winnetka, Douglas Flood of Kenilworth, Henry Kitchell Webster, Jr., and John R. Whitman of Evanston, Towner Webster, III, of Winnetka, and John Smalley of Wilmette.

Miss Elizabeth Babcock, who gave a luncheon on Saturday, September 22, at the Orrington, was among the first to entertain in Miss Webster's honor. Miss Mary Elizabeth Marshall of Wilmette is having a luncheon Saturday, September 29, and other parties planned are those to be given by Mrs. Perry Buchanan and Miss Elizabeth Lamson, on October 6 and 10 respectively.

Two affairs already have been given in Kenilworth in honor of a Kenilworth bride-to-be. Miss Elizabeth Barrett, whose engagement was announced recently. Her sister, Mrs. Sam Ross, of 708 Willow road, Winnetka, formerly of Kenilworth, has entertained at a luncheon shower and Miss Lane Rodgeway of 207 Cumberland road, Kenilworth, was hostess at a kitchen shower recently. Miss Hannah left Friday of last week to spend most of the winter in California.

Mrs. Ansel McBride Kinney (Ellnor Woodward) is a member of both the ticket and the poster committees for the Smith ball which will take place on October 19, at the Evanston Country club. Other members of the ticket committee from Wilmette, Winnetka and Glencoe include Mrs. Malcolm R. Ryan, Mrs. John S. Loomis, Mrs. Lawrence Norem, Miss Caroline Kimball, and Miss Barbara Mettler. Miss Mary Lois McMullen of Evanston, who is general chairman of the ball, is also chairman of the above committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Ballard of 811 Auburn avenue and their children arrived in Winnetka last Tuesday after spending the last three months abroad. Mrs. Ballard and the children went over first and spent three weeks in Paris before going to Annecy Lake in Switzerland where they met Mr. Ballard. Later the children spent some time on the Normandy coast while Mr. and Mrs. Ballard enjoyed some riding at Fontainebleau. They came home on the S. S. De-Grasse, arriving in New York on September 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Zinke of 375 Woodlawn avenue, Glencoe, and their sister, Mrs. Alma A. Dykeman of Janesville, Wis., who has been their guest for several weeks, motored to Fond du Lac, Wis., last Sunday to attend an at home on Tuesday, September 25, in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. Zinke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zinke.

J. Sanguinet Williams, 693 Greenwood avenue, Glencoe son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Williams, returned last Wednesday from an unusual trip abroad. Last spring Dr. Sven Knudsen of Boston spoke at New Trier High school on the "My Friend Abroad" movement which is the idea of interchange of young boys as visitors to the homes of the Scandinavian and American nations. Sanguinet was chosen to go from New Trier and has spent the past two months in Norway, Sweden and Denmark, actually visiting in the homes of the people whom he found charming and remarkably hospitable.

Mrs. Williams entertained at dinner for her son last night. Among the guests was one of the boys from California who had been with Sanguinet on the trip abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Strong, 1377 Tower road, are opening their home tomorrow afternoon for a reception given by the North Shore Theatre guild in honor of Walter Pritchard Eaton. About 4 o'clock Mr. Eaton will talk informally on little theaters and kindred subjects. A general invitation has been extended by the Theatre guild for this reception and anyone on the north shore interested in the guild and its work or in hearing Mr. Eaton will be welcome.

The North Shore Theatre guild began its fall work on Wednesday, September 19, at a luncheon given by Mrs. Sherman Aldrich at her home for the town chairmen. A general outline of the year's work of the committees planned.

Tuesday afternoon, September 25, Mrs. J. Williams Macy entertained at tea for the chairmen and members of all committees of the guild at the first general meeting of the year. At this meeting David Owen, the guild's director, John Allen Stewart, its business manager, and Henry Kitchell Webster, who is vice-chairman, gave short talks on the work of the guild.

Miss Bethany Crowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burt A. Crowe of 234 Raleigh road, Kenilworth, left last Friday for Briar Cliff manor, N. Y., where she will enter Mrs. Bow's school. She will stop enroute at West Point academy where she will attend a house party and the West Point opening prom before going to school and will visit friends in New York for a few days.

Mrs. Charles ReQua and her daughter, Mrs. Stewart Johnston, left their home at 678 Sheridan road, Winnetka on Wednesday and will sail Friday from New York for England. They plan to remain there about six weeks. Mrs. Johnston's daughter, Tita, has remained home with her grandfather.

Complimentary to Miss Evelyn Gunstrom, who was married Saturday to F. J. Plunkett, the Misses Edna Schars and Helen Brand entertained at a kitchen gift shower and bunco party, Thursday evening, Sept. 20.

ENGLISH STUDENTS VISIT U. S. SCHOOLS

AMAZED AT LAVISHNESS

Express Extreme Surprise at Amount of Money Being "Thrown Around" For New Buildings

Thirteen young Englishmen, unofficial representatives of the colleges of Oxford university, England, now on a tour of the American universities in the east, expressed extreme surprise at the amount of money being "thrown around" in this country, especially as evidenced in new buildings for educational institutions as they chatted in Boston after a visit to the campuses of Harvard and Yale universities.

On Tour

The group, composed of men and women, is on a 19-day tour through the middle Atlantic and New England states, to be concluded with a day's view of Niagara Falls, and an 11-day trip through the eastern provinces of Canada. They have been entertained since their arrival in New York by representatives of the English-Speaking Union in New York and Boston. The trip is being promoted in order that the Oxford students may have an opportunity of viewing first-hand the various educational systems of representative universities in the United States and Canada, and to "get a bird's-eye view of the States and Canada," as one of the number expressed it, according to the Christian Science Monitor.

It was of especial moment to Alfred Nonte, an undergraduate of Oriel College, Oxford, that so much money was being seemingly wasted in this country. He said he expressed his opinion of his comrades, "We see buildings everywhere," he said, "that must have cost much more than their function warranted."

Heavy Expenditure

He was concerned with the enormous expenditure of American universities for libraries and other "little outbuildings," particularly for the building of the new Harkness Library at Yale. Another student of the group thought that "the money that must have been expended for the construction of the Yale Bowl might have been put to much better usage, especially since the Bowl is used for only one large game a year."

Passing into the Harvard Yard, under the century-old portals of University Hall, where for over an hour he and his colleagues had besieged Assistant Dean Robert E. Bacon with sundry questions relative to Harvard and "the States" in general, many of which were unanswerable, one of the party lifted a straw hat to his head, and the act evoked a chuckle from his fellow travelers.

No Straw Hats There

"You see now," he said in explanation, "just because I'm right blithe and chick and real Americanish wearing this straw, these boys and girls enjoy watching me. They know jolly well that I just bought it the other day in New Haven, for we don't wear straw hats in England. Oh no. Felt hats suffice for most of us—those who wear any hat at all—and we wear them the year around. I liked the straw hats so well, however—that is, I enjoyed seeing them so much—that I decided to purchase one. Wouldn't I be jolly well smiled at in England, though?"

"A baseball game, the first view of the American pastime for the visitors, and a tour of historic places were events of the schedule in Boston.

Though generally impressed with the industry and growth of the United States, the members of the party disapproved the corruption of the English language by Americans. "You do not speak English; you speak 'merican,'" they declared. "We are more precise, expressive and perhaps 'acidulous' in our speaking than Americans are."

JAPANESE PRINTER KING RARELY SEEN

Seiji Noma One of Outstanding Publicists in Nippon, But Is Retiring

Seiji Noma is Japan's Lord of printers' ink. Although one of the outstanding publicists of Japan, he is comparatively little known to foreigners. He is a publisher of Japanese popular magazines and books, a unique character, the like of whom has never been witnessed in Japan. The figures mentioned of his various publications appear fabulous, says the Nation's Business Magazine.

One of his monthlies, the "King" magazine, is said to command the circulation of a million and a half. He publishes eight other monthlies, and the total number of his readers is estimated at more than 10,000,000, that is, one out of every five Japanese is a reader of his magazines. Setting aside the question of accuracy or otherwise of these enormous figures, there is enough ocular evidence to prove that he is decidedly the "King" of Japanese publishing. A casual inquiry at the nearest bookseller's will elicit the answer that from 70 to 80 per cent of the magazines sold are those published by the Kodansha of Mr. Noma.

Seiji Noma goes in for mass production; for popular stories that fit men, women and children of all sorts and conditions, and he is by far the largest consumer of paper and ink in Japan.

Mr. Noma is rarely seen in public. In fact, he never stirs out of his house, except for occasional visits to his country houses, but, like some huge unanny spider, he sits on his web, spinning plans and making schemes.

Mr. Noma has his enemies, as may be supposed; he has received in his time daggers and coffins from unknown sources. So he makes Mrs. Noma privy to all affairs in his business lest, as he says, he may die any time, and leave his wife in the dark.

ANTIQUE TREASURES FOUND IN LONDON

Discovered in Excavation for New Bank of England; Many Roman Relics

The big hole where the Bank of England is being rebuilt in London has afforded some rich antiquarian treasures which the Governor and Company have generously given to the British and Guildhall museums.

The finds include a pipeclay statue of Venus, several specimens of the fine red glazed ware of ancient Gaul, commonly, but incorrectly known as Samian, a slender iron style for flattening the wax surface of writing tablets, bronze hairpins, a spoon with very narrow gold bowl for drawing "lip-tick" out of tiny bottles, ornamental pins, bronze ear picks, single iron boat hook and a "mortarium" wherein certain kinds of food were mixed or pounded.

The red glazed ware, to which reference has been made, was a new thing when the Romans came to Britain, and for two centuries it was one of the most characteristic Roman products. Every self-respecting Roman household had this ware in the dining room.
