PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRIES

Lessons of the war have taught us that the more nearly self-sustaining a nation becomes the more advantageously it will be situated should war unhappily come again.

The same principle applies in peace times as well, and the more we are able to substitute home products for those usually imported the better off we shall be from an economic standpoint.

With this principle in mind, the Southwide Cotton Council is urging new and wider uses of cotton, as well as better methods of marketing that staple. It is estimated that the use of cotton bagging alone, instead of imported jute, might easily absorb from one-half million to a million bales of cotton annually.

The idea of giving preference to home products is applicable to states and local communities as well as to nations. Home producers of both raw and manufactured products should be given every possible encouragement and patronage. Aside from keeping money at home, such a policy would often make possible large savings in transportation charges, give more employment to local labor and enhance local prosperity generally.

PLAN TO USE TIDES FOR MOTIVE POWER

IN THE BAY OF FUNDY

Highest Tides in World Found in This Region and Works to Utilize Them Soon to Be Built

The completion of preliminary surveys of the $100,000,000 Cooper-Quoddy tide power development, and recent visits to this city of Ford representatives and of Martin J. Insull have stimulated belief that finances are to be available for harnessing the tides of the Bay of Fundy for generating electricity.

Dexter P. Cooper, promoter of the project, estimates that 500,000 horsepower can be generated here continuously, and during the two weeks of each month when there are unusually high tides this total would reach nearly 700,000 horsepower. Government engineers estimate that 600,000 horsepower can be generated at Muschel Shoals during the very high spring floods, while during the dry season there, less than 100,000 horsepower is available.

Mr. Cooper's studies convinced him of the practicability of harnessing the tides from the Bay of Fundy, as they rush in and out of Passamaquoddy Bay, giving a rise and fall of 24 feet at the docks at Eastport.

For more than two years a corps of engineers has been conducting experiments at Eastport, Me., dealing with the project. More than $500,000 has been expended in this preliminary work, according to the Christian Science Monitor.

An upper pool would serve as a reservoir of supply to the power house, while a lower pool would form a reservoir to receive the water from the power house. The works would be constructed so that at no time will the levels of the two pools be the same, thus assuring a continuous output of power.

The upper pool would be refilled at each high tide and at low tide the lower pool would be drained. The approximate area of the upper pool is 100 square miles and that of the lower pool, 50 square miles.

Weir fishermen have made objections to the construction of these artificial works in Passamaquoddy Bay on the ground that they will wipe out their industry. Plans for the financing of the project provide for the compensation of these fishermen, it is understood.

"THE SKULL," MYSTERY COMEDY THRILLER

Due to contracts for future bookings at the Garrick Theatre it is necessary to move Lew Cantor's sensational success, "The Skull," a melodramatic mystery comedy thriller by Bernard J. McOwen and Harry E. Humphrey, which has been attracting capacity business since its opening, to the Princess Theatre, Clark street between Jackson and Van Buren, where it will settle down for a run, starting Sunday night, November 11.

Patterned on the general order of "The Bat"; "The Cat and The Canary" and "The Gorilla," it far surpasses its predecessors in the matter of hair-raising incidents and has the greatest collection of trick doors, coffins, spoons, corpses, secret panels, and passages, clutching claws, skeletons and strange noises and all the other traditional props ever collected on one stage, and keeps one's nerves in a state of high tension throughout.

Chicago society has taken to "The Skull." Their latest "fad" being Spook Parties to "The Skull."

"THE FIVE O'CLOCK GIRL" ENTERS THIRD WEEK

"The Five O'Clock Girl," which enters its third week at Woods Theatre tomorrow night might be paraphrased a "ten-strike" as it closed its second week with a record never exceeded at Woods Theatre.

This musical play was produced under the management of Philip Goodman who also gave us "The Ramblers." He elected to send to Chicago the original New York cast, headed by two of the most expensive artists in the musical comedy field, Mary Eaton and Oscar Shaw.

"The Five O'Clock Girl" is a fast-stepping show, with a romantic story of unusual continuity for its style of entertainment and is filled with lilt-ing melodies and song hits. However, it possesses the anomaly of an abundance of comedy which is largely contributed by Pert Kelton and Shaw and Lee who are abetted by Jack Norton and Danny Dare.

"The Five O'Clock Girl" is a musical play for all ages, clean and wholesome, fascinating in story, prolific in musical numbers.

Elephants and Mice

The probable reason that elephants are afraid of mice is that the little creatures will crawl into their sensitive trunks. They do not fear rats.—The American Magazine.
