"The most interesting hair down in braids like they used lecture I've ever heard, so fine, so to, they might get it caught in the logical and so stimulating," said many clutch pedal. of those present to this writer. For the benefit of those who were unable to attend the first lecture "Youth and the Moral Order" here are just a few of Mr. Smith's points: "There are two great wishes that animate all human beings, the wish for security and the wish for variety-society is a part of us, it has a negative inhibiting part on our life, the struggle is always between society set over against the inner urgencies. What is Youth? Youth is the voice of desire, impulse, instinct crying forth against the life of habit, of custom, and the demands of society, all of which is the moral order."

Here is a real contribution to our thinking, "Intelligence is the present guide of conduct with forethought of future consequences."
