DOLL CONTEST DRAWS CONSIDERABLE INTEREST

Knaak's Pharmacy to Give Away 15 Dolls to Popular Children

A count of the votes late Tuesday afternoon showed the line-up at that time, in the following order: Marguerite Mau, Ruth Tennerman, June Gunckel, Fanny Hoffman, Rosemary Russo, Helen Scully, Patsy Clavey, Rosemary Roll, Eva Jane Bolle, Betty Clavey, Carolyn Henthorn, Shirley Krogstad, Sylvia Johnson, Dorothy Anderson, Charlotte Baum, Dorothy Fraser, Rosemary Fattie, Lenora Wilson, June Nelson, Gloria Segert, Cecile Hvale, Barbara Juhrend, C. ### LETTER SENT OUT TO LOCAL RESIDENTS

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Highland Park hospital have just mailed the following letter to residents of this city.

"Your auxiliary has a 'Memorial and Happy Day Fund,' the proceeds of which are used for charitable purposes.

"A great deal of money is spent for flowers at funerals, which money if sent to the 'Memorial fund' would serve a double purpose; namely, paying a tribute to a friend and at the same time helping some needy person.

"This would also be true of a check sent to the 'Happy Day fund.' One so often wonders how to remember a birthday or an anniversary. The use of this fund would be a splendid solution.

"A letter telling of your donation to either of these funds will be sent at once by the chairman, the amounts being confidential.

"Any sum is acceptable and checks, with the names of those you wish to honor, should be sent to the chairman, Mrs. Irving E. Stieglitz, 529 South Linden avenue, co-chairman, Mrs. Sellar Bullard, 215 Orchard lane."

MRS. VERA B. SHIPMAN TO SPEAK HERE DEC. 4

Arts Department of Woman's Club to Hear Talk on "Quilts"

The Art Department of the Highland Park Woman's club will hold its second meeting on Tuesday morning, Dec. 4 at 10:30 sharp in the club house.

The brilliant speaker Mrs. Vera Brady Shipman, of the Davis store, will give an illuminating talk on "Quilts of Yesterday and Today." She will have with her a brilliant array of manufactured printed quilts with ancient patterns and will tell the history of quilts of various nations. Members of the class are also asked to bring with them any heirlooms in the way of quilts, and tell their history.

This is expected to be another delightful morning, as was the last meeting, when Miss Harriet Montgomery charmed her audience with her lecture and exhibit of engravings.

The art committee extends an invitation to all who are interested, whether they are members of the club or not, to join this class. Meetings are held the first Tuesday morning of each month.

BURN OLD FLAG IN REVERENCE MONDAY

Trinity Church Replaces Flag in Church; Hold Ceremony for Old Flag

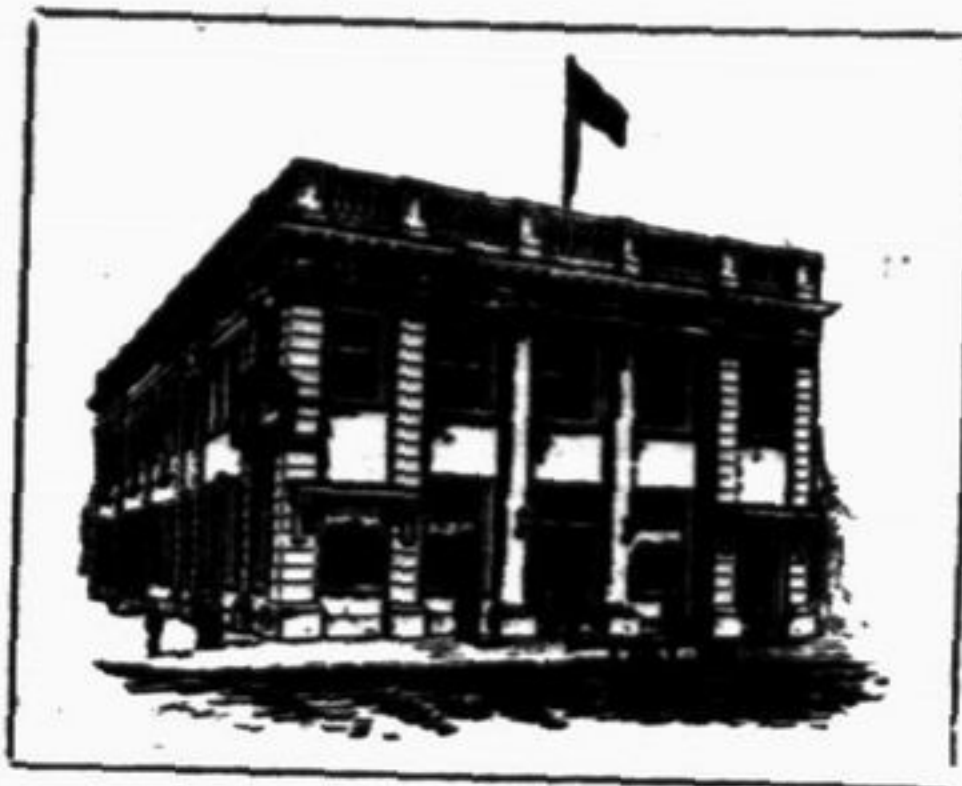

According to tradition and custom as authorized by the United States Flag Association, the War Flag of Trinity church, was reverently burned Monday morning in the parish house of Trinity church, as being no longer serviceable and there being no opportunity to preserve it, and to present it ever being discarded as rubbish.

The Rev. Christoph Keller, Mrs. Henry Mason and Mrs. R. P. P. Wainwright, had charge of this service. They laid it on a freshly kindled fire, while other members of the Flag association and members of the parish saluted it and stood at attention. A new flag has taken the place of the old one in the church.

Successful Young Man

A young man who is rapidly making a name for himself as a wise business man tells this story about himself.

"My parents died when I was 10 years old. I had no near relatives so father arranged in his Will for the bank to act as my Guardian as well as Executor.

The officers of the bank were like a father to me. They saw to it that I was well provided for. I talked with them about my plans—even about my clothes.

When I wanted to go to college, those men helped me pick my studies and plan my life work.

After I was through college the bank gradually turned things over to me. They helped me learn to manage my property.

Your family deserves this service.

OPPOSE GOVERNMENT PRINTING FOR SALE

HURTS PRIVATE CONCERNS

Hoover Quoted as Against Competition with Business by Federal Bureaus; Principle is Unfair

Never before in the history of American politics have the people been brought face to face with a problem for which newspapers publishers and printers have sought recognition for nearly forty years. The press of the country has from time to time called on Congress to recognize the principle that the government has no right to compete unfairly with private enterprise in the printing of special request addresses on stamped envelopes. Regarding this matter the National Editorial association has issued the following:

President-elect Hoover recognized the gravity of the situation and stressed the importance of keeping the government out of business in at least three of his four principal addresses before election. The printers and publishers want the government to stop selling a commodity—commercial printing—which is available in the local print shop without placing orders with the Government Post Office. That Mr. Hoover recognized the peril of these bureaucratic tendencies in relation to the press is unmistakably shown in excerpts from his speech in New York, October 22.

What Hoover Says
"Every expansion of government in business means that government in order to protect itself from the political consequences of its errors and wrongs is driven irresistibly without peace to greater and greater control of the nation's press and platform. Every step of bureaucratizing of the business or our country poisons the very roots of liberalism—that is, political equality, free speech, free assembly, free press and equality of opportunity."

Equality of opportunity is all that the press is asking for in the enactment of legislation—that is, we believe we should have equal opportunity of competing for the printing of envelopes in each community. We resent propaganda of government bureaucrats in the Post Office department circulated among citizens patronizing this government agency selling printing. This paternalistic propaganda deliberately misrepresents the printers of the country and terms them "profiteers" because they cannot compete with government prices. President-elect Hoover has answered this bureaucratic misrepresentation against the press of the country again in his New York speech when he said:

Another Quotation
"The government in commercial business does not tolerate amongst its customers the freedom of competitive reprisals to which private business is subject.

Bureaucracy does not tolerate the spirit of independence; it spreads the spirit of submission into our daily life and penetrates the temper of our people not with the habit of powerful resistance to wrong but with the habit of timid acceptance of irresistible might.

Competition is closed by bureaucracy. Bureaucracy is ever desirous of spreading its influence and power."

It should be borne in mind that in instances where citizens of this community patronize the government and place their orders for printing with the Post Office department they are encouraging government competition, which a majority of American voters have unreservedly condemned. The principle of unfair government competition with private enterprise is not an abstract proposition, but a real problem which is brought to your own door step if you continue to buy printing from the Federal Government or protest the restriction of this bureaucratic practice.

ABYSSINIA OBJECT OF NEW EXPEDITION

FIELD MUSEUM SPONSOR Started Oct. 20 From New York to Collect Rare Specimens of Animals Native to That Country

Led by Harold White of New York City, well-known hunter and explorer, a zoological expedition to Abyssinia on behalf of Field Museum of Natural History sailed from New York on the steamship "Ile de France" on Saturday, Oct. 20, it was announced by Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum.

The expedition is to round out the results of the museum's previous Abyssinian expedition in 1926-27 (the Chicago Daily News-Field Museum Abyssinian Expedition), and the combined collections of the two expeditions are expected to make the finest collection in existence of animals from that part of Africa.

The present expedition is financed jointly by Mr. White, and by his friend, John Coats of Ayrshire, Scotland, who will also be a member of the party. The official name of the expedition is the Harold White-John Coats Abyssinian Expedition of Field Museum. The third principal member of the party will be C. J. Albrecht, a member of Field Museum's staff of taxidermists.

To Secure Specimens
The expedition will not be a "big game hunt" in the usual sense, Director Simms declares. That is, no killing will be done unnecessarily or for mere sportsmanship; killing will be strictly limited to a few animals desirable as museum specimens or for other scientific purposes. This limitation will be strictly adhered to because the members of the expedition, as well as the museum, are fully in sympathy with the wild life conservation movement.

A comprehensive and varied collection of Abyssinian mammals and birds will be sought. One of the principal objectives will be a group of reticulated giraffes, including adult males and females, and young. This is the largest, finest and handsomest of all giraffes, according to Dr. Wilfred Osgood, curator of zoology, who led the previous Abyssinian expedition, and it is found only in southern Abyssinia and vicinity. It is colored a rich sienna brown, with its white markings much more sharply contrasted than those of the common giraffe, and next to the elephant, rhinoceros and hippopotamus, it is the largest African animal. The preparation of such a group is one of the most difficult tasks a taxidermist can have, says Dr. Osgood, because of the animal's very thick skin, and other peculiarities.

Preliminary Arrangements
Arrangements have been made for several men now on the ground, who will be assistants in the expedition's work, to go ahead into the interior of Abyssinia with a large caravan of camels carrying supplies and equipment, before the main party arrives in Abyssinia. Traveling on mules and horses, the main party will overtake the camel caravan about the time it reaches the section of the country where operations are to begin. This will include regions of Abyssinia which the previous expedition did not reach.

After crossing the Atlantic, Mr. White will go to Mr. Coats' estate in Scotland, while Mr. Albrecht will proceed directly to Marseilles. Mr. Coats was a major in the British Royal Air Force during the war, and an intimate friend and flying comrade of the Late Vernon Castle who was killed while battling in the air. Mr. White and Mr. Coats will fly from Scotland to Marseilles in the latter's plane, there joining Mr. Albrecht and other members of the party, which will then sail to Djibouti, principal port of Abyssinia. Thence they will follow the camel caravan inland. A stop will be made at Addis Ababa, the capital, where Ras Tafari, ruler of Abyssinia, will be visited. Ras Tafari gave special courtesies and assistance to the previous expedition of the museum, and is extremely friendly to Mr. White as a result of two previous expeditions the latter has led in his country.

From Addis Ababa the expedition will have three to four weeks' steady travel by horse and mule caravan into the province of Haji. The party will hunt there, and around Lake Stephanie, then in the province of Boran, and on the shores of Lake Rudolf, which is about 100 miles long and the fourth largest African lake. Among the more important animals to be sought, besides giraffes, are rhinoceroses, black-maned lions, and various antelopes including the Eland, a very large species. Notes furnished by Dr. Osgood will aid the expedition in its search for additional species desired for the general collection.

After finishing work near Lake Rudolf, one division of the expedition led by Messrs. White and Coats, will go to the Sobat River region for further hunting, while a second division headed by Mr. Albrecht will go south into the nearby British territory of Keenya, and continue south until the railroad is reached, which will take them to Nairobi, whence Mr. Albrecht will return to the United States, about nine months after his departure from Chicago. The return date of the other division, which will then be in the elephant and buffalo country, is uncertain.

Mr. White, in addition to his previous Abyssinian expeditions, has hunted in India, Indo-China, Yunnan and Szechuan, and China, has given many valuable specimens both to Field Museum and other institutions. He was captain of the Syracuse university football team in 1916, and was chosen "All-American" guard.

Mr. Coates is a member of the old Scotch family of J. P. Coats, makers of linen thread used throughout the world.

Mr. Albrecht is an expert photographer, and will make both still and motion pictures, as well as color sketches for use later in making painted backgrounds for the groups at the museum.
