COOLIDGE POPULARITY

More than one correspondent noted as a surprising fact the crowds which greeted Mr. Coolidge on his recent trip to Vermont. They were unexpectedly large and friendly—perhaps affectionate was the right word. At every turn there was evidence that Mr. Coolidge, so far from having passed the peak of his popularity, was never so warmly regarded by his fellow countrymen.

The five years of Mr. Coolidge's Presidency have constituted, in truth an amazing era of good feeling, comments the New York Tribune. It would be difficult to parallel the wide-spread esteem and absence of enmity in which Mr. Coolidge has lived. Now, as his term begins to approach its end and by all the rules of politics he should be nearing eclipse and obscurity—who has less power than a departing President—this good will and admiration follow him. What is true of Vermont is true of New York and the country over. It is, indeed, amazing.

The historians will be long debating the source of Mr. Coolidge's power. By violating all the rules of modern American politics—which call for loud words and many actions—this silent Vermont Yankee has earned a larger and stancher following than any other President of our times. Plainly some fundamental traits of human greatness are fighting on his side. Sincerity is obviously one and simplicity another. A fine analytical mind, that displeases the sloppy thinkers but cuts through to the truth, helps. But the assemblage of traits that make Calvin Coolidge what he is can hardly be reduced to a formula. His is simply another salty, strong countryman, who grew in stature over the years, steadily and silently, until he measured up to the greatest executive office in the world.

The will, the conscience, the character that lie behind such a growth and mastery can neither be seen nor measured. They are the only real mystery of the President, and they are shared by every human being. Perhaps that is why so many humans like him.

PROGRESS IN MUSIC DEMOCRATIC GROWTH

Magazine Writer Cites Agencies Which Have Made It Available to All

Democracy's advance in the United States has been nowhere shown to any greater extent than in the realm of music, declares a writer in the Woman's Home Companion.

Listing the radio, the recording piano and the phonograph as three agencies which have brought music to the humblest homes, the writer states that the present generation has the finest opportunities of any in history for music in the home. A library of phonograph records is as important to the happiness and culture of the home as a library of books, he says, adding that good reproduced music stimulates the talented and interprets the different master's versions. Thus the child of today is offered a sound musical stimulus whereas children of other generations in many cases completely lacked this cultural influence.

"We are told that books reflect the individuality of those in the home," says the writer. "The same argument should hold true for musical discs, for surely the idea of a musical library has become familiar. I believe that the proper musical material provided for children in a carefully chosen library of discs will help solve the problem of many parents, the indifferent child and the child who does not want to practice."

The writer denies that the mechanical musical devices of today have destroyed a tendency for self-expression.

HOTEL WAUKEGAN IS TO BE RE-ORGANIZED

Report Says House That Recently Went Into Receivership Will Be Completed

The Hotel Waukegan Corporation is to be re-organized and the hotel, a 12 story structure, which is regarded as one of the finest hotel buildings in Northern Illinois, is to be completed at an early date. This announcement, which is of supreme importance to the City of Waukegan, as it will mark a step forward in progress was made last week.

The Foreman Trust and Savings bank of Chicago has started a foreclosure suit in the Circuit court against the Hotel Waukegan Corporation. The action was started individually and as trustee under a deed of trust dated November 21, 1927, the indebtedness of the hotel concern the Chicago law firm of Brown, Fox and Blumberg. Attorney Hervey C. Coulson is local counsel in the matter.

The First National bank of Waukegan was appointed receiver of the hotel by Circuit Judge Claire C. Edwards and while the suit is pending which may be for as long as two years, will direct the operation of the hotel. Attorney A. F. Beaubien was named attorney for the receiver.

BOOZE RUNNER PAYS BIG FINE TO COUNTY

Payment of a $1,000 fine by John Matsie, 26, Chicago boozerman, caught last week near Waukegan, with a 600 gallon load of Thanksgiving alcohol for Milwaukee, swelled the total loss for bootleggers to $3,500.

The load was valued at $2,550 Matsie stated after he was caught. The alcohol has been placed in the basement of the county building and will be confiscated.

Matsie was allowed the truck in which the liquor was being hauled. He was said to be driving for a syndicate of bootleggers.

Sheriff Lawrence Doolittle, after a conference with States Attorney A. V. Smith, had recommended a fine of $1,500 but this amount was cut to $1,000 by Justice Harry Hoyt. Matsie was caught on Green Bay road. Capt. George Heckinger, of the county police, with two of his deputies, overtook the truck.

DRAWING WINDOW SHADE SAVES WOMAN'S LIFE

Mrs. Cousineau of Waukegan Escapes Injury from Random Bullet Oddly

The mere act of drawing a heavy linen shade last week saved Mrs. G. S. Cousineau, 29 Edison Ct., last week from serious injury or perhaps instant death, when a .22 calibre bullet crashed through the window and fell to the floor after having been deflected by the shade.

Had the shade not been drawn the bullet would have struck the woman in the center of the forehead, which would probably have meant instant death.

According to the report made, the woman had been standing on a chair washing a window. Having finished, she drew the curtain down in front of her. Just as she did so the glass in front of her crashed, the curtain split directly in front of her and the slug dropped to the floor.

She was not injured but was badly frightened.
