

North Shore News

Mrs. Joanna Schwartz, her daughter, Mrs. Frances Farrell, and her granddaughter, Gladys, are spending the winter with Mrs. Schwartz' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwartz, 187 Ridge avenue, Winnetka. Clifford Schwartz, the Charles Schwartz' son, arrives home Saturday from Carleton college for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Harrison and daughter, Ruth Mary, 307 Abbottsford road, Kenilworth returned last Saturday after spending two weeks in the east. Their trip included Asheville, N. C., where they visited Dan Harrison who is in the Asheville School for Boys this winter. From Asheville they went to Washington where they were guests of Congressman Fess of Ohio, who took Ruth to the private galleries of Congress and she was there when the Boulder Dam bill was passed. They met many prominent persons in Washington. From Washington they went to New York City and after seeing many plays, they returned to Washington for a few days before returning home. Dan Harrison is arriving home today.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress, 939 Green Bay road, have issued cards for a New Year's day reception which they will hold at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Fentress have given these delightful affairs for so many years that they have become almost traditional with their many north shore friends.

Mrs. Chesley R. Perry, 272 Sylvan road, Glencoe, returned last Sunday from an extended trip in the east. She had been on business for the auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans, of which she is past president. At New Haven, Conn., she visited her nephew, Knox Booth, who is attending Yale. She also visited friends and relatives in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Lansing, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Ayers Boal, with Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson, Mrs. Stewart Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. George B. Massey, held open house on Christmas afternoon at the Boal home at 701 Sheridan road. This, as well as the entertainment which the Boals gave Christmas eve, for the children from Country Day school who sing carols, is a custom of several years' standing.

Thomas and Stewart Boal are expected to return today from Harvard to take part in the Christmas festivities and Mrs. Raymond Hardenbergh of Washington, D. C., will also be a holiday guest at the Boal home. Ayers Boal, Jr., according to word the family has received is among those snow-bound at the Grenfell mission in Labrador where he is spending the year's leave of absence which he is taking from Dartmouth.

Mrs. Hibbard Casselberry arrived Thursday from Florida to spend the holidays with her father and sister, John Leonard and Miss Harriet Leonard. Mrs. Casselberry will be here for Miss Leonard's debut which will be an event of New Year's day and will coincide with the annual reception given by her father at their home. Miss Leonard has added the names of three more debutantes to her list of assistants. They are Miss Louise Lackner, Miss Elizabeth Knode, and Miss Louise Fentress.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacLeish have issued cards for a reception at their home at 608 Elm street, Winnetka, on New Year's afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock. Mrs. MacLeish's mother, Mrs. Joseph B. McCall of Philadelphia, is visiting her and will be the guest of honor.

Miss Ruth Keeley, daughter of James Keeley, is to be married to Luther Hammond, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hammond of Chicago, formerly of Cumnor road, Kenilworth on Saturday, January 12, at St. Chrysostom's church. The Rev. E. Reginald Williams, who used to be rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Kenilworth and now is dean of the diocese of Milwaukee, will officiate assisted by Dr. Abbott, rector of St. Chrysostom's.

An announcement of interest to the north shore and particularly to Kenilworth is made by Mr. and Mrs. A. Shreve Badger of Evanston, who this week have disclosed the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to William Dent Reichmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander F. Reichmann of Barrington, Ill. The Reichmanns formerly made their home in Kenilworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Urion, 989 Cherry street, Winnetka, left on Christmas Day for Nashville, Tenn., where they will be gone for a week to attend the national convention of Phi Delta Theta.

Miss Jean MacLeish, debutante daughter of the Bruce MacLeishes of 85 Wentworth avenue, Glencoe, was the guest of honor at a luncheon and matinee party which her aunt, Mrs. MacLeish Day, gave last Wednesday for a group of debutantes. The luncheon was held at the Woman's Athletic club and later the guests saw the "Trial of Mary Dugan."

Seymour Morris, 1170 Westmoor road, and Charles Markley, 777 Burr avenue, have returned home from Lawrenceville, where they are members of the senior class, to spend the holidays with their parents.

Seymour Morris is giving a dinner party for thirty guests at his home Friday evening, December 28, before the Williams college Cap and Bells production. The guests will include Helen Dawes, Mary Cook, Helen Lord, Marian Hymers, Elinor Rew, Stanley Craven, J. H. S. Lee, Jr., Harold Pulsifer, Sarell Beall, Charles Markley, and George Dyche.

William C. Miller, 795 Grove street, trust officer of the State bank of Chicago, and Mrs. Miller were host and hostess to one hundred insurance men, their wives, and friends at dinner and a theater party December 12. The party was given for a group of underwriters, who have attended a series of lectures on financial subjects, economics, and life insurance, but primarily relating to the functions of trust departments.

Miss Virginia Woodland, who made her debut at the Fortnightly December 26, chose the following girls to be her assistants: The Misses Jeanette Peterkin, Lillian Dudley, Betty Frey, Jean Stevens, Marion Eckhart, Mattiella Hubart, Marice Murphy, and Virginia Smith. Miss Smith, who is the roommate of Miss Woodland at Smith college, arrived from Preepert, December 26, for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Andrews and Mr. and Mrs. Hallett W. Thorne are entertaining at dinner prior to the Williams college play, "The Pigeon," to be given next Friday evening. The dinner will be given at Indian Hill club and will be in honor Miss Leslie Thorne of New York who is the house-guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hallett Thorne for the holidays.

Mrs. John Milton Trainor, 521 Longwood avenue, returned recently from Fort Meyers, Fla., and also New York where she had attended the wedding of a friend. Mrs. Trainor's sister, Mrs. Francis Carter, and her daughter, Virginia, arrived Friday from Margaret Hall, Kentucky, will be guests of the Trainors over the holidays.

Mrs. S. A. McDowell, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Colvin, 216 Robsart road, Kenilworth has just returned from a one month's visit with another daughter, Mrs. Stanley Castle, at Alton, Ill.

Mrs. George Stanley Parker, 200 Linden avenue, will give a luncheon next Thursday in honor of Louise Fentress, and Louise Lackner, at her home.

ROMAN OINTMENT JAR AT ART INSTITUTE

One of Six or Eight Examples of Work in Cameo Glass Exhibited in Gallery

An extremely valuable Roman glass lekythos, or ointment jar, is on loan in the Classical Gallery, through the generosity of Mrs. Alexander Scott. The piece is of cameo glass, and as there are not more than six or eight examples of this beautiful type known in the world today, and as at least five of these are fragmentary or broken while this piece is in perfect condition, it is arousing considerable interest. The most famous vase in cameo glass is the Portland Vase, discovered in the sixteenth century, and purchased in the eighteenth by the Duke of Portland. From him, Josiah Wedgwood obtained permission to copy the urn in pottery, and later it was given to the British Museum, where it was once shattered by a stone hurled by a madman, and later expertly reconstructed. Like the Portland Vase, the lekythos is of blue glass overlaid with white. The process resembles the carving of cameos; two layers of glass are superimposed, and the outer is ground away by an engraver's wheel, leaving a design in

AMERICAN INDIAN'S ARTISTIC ABILITY

REDSKINS HAVE OWN ART

Aborigines Produce Some of Finest Basketry World Has Ever Known; Also Skilled in Weaving

The American Indian has a culture all his own and has produced some real artistic creations not only in pottery and basket weaving but in architecture. Some interesting examples of this art are given in the current issue of the National Republic by M. W. Stirling, Chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology. Writing under the title "The Indian as an Artist," Mr. Stirling says, in part:

"As a weaver the Indian has produced in certain areas of America the finest basketry the world has known, and in other regions textile fabrics which will stand inspection beside the best which the Old World can offer. Basket making reaches its greatest advancement in a region where pottery is absent. It is in central California that we find the highest development of the basket maker's art.

Two fundamental techniques are employed in basket making, weaving and coiling. In the former, innumerable variations are employed in intertwining the wrap and weft elements, each method giving its characteristic effect. The baskets built up by the coiling process are subject to almost as many variations. The coiling process in particular lends itself to the application of exterior embellishments.

The making of the basket is interesting as an art, not only because of the great variety of complex and tasteful techniques employed in its fabrication but because of the artistic taste employed in shaping and ornamentation. As a general rule the basket is decorated either by skillful use of different colored materials which make up the elements of the weave, or by means of applique or the addition of such embellishments as shells or feathers.

The beautiful feather baskets of the Pomo Indians of California are world famous. The red crest of the woodpecker, green feathers from mallard or teal ducks, quail plumes, are testfully applied by the California basket maker. Colorful pendants of abalone shell and beads are added in many instances for further adornment.

The skill of the Indian in weaving textile fabrics is well known. The finest examples of prehistoric textiles come from Peru, where the art had reached a very high stage of development. It is probable that fabrics of equal merit were woven in Mexico and Central America at the time of the Spanish conquest. Unfortunately climatic conditions in this region are not such as to favor the preservation of perishable articles, so that archeological specimens of textiles are almost entirely absent. However, early travelers have left us descriptions, while representations of fabrics on ancient pottery and stone give us an impression of the designs in vogue.

"As with basketry, the nature of the artistic medium brings about the formation of angular designs. Among Indian tribes with whom the art survived to later days, the Indians of the Southwest, particularly the Navajo, and certain tribes of the Northwest Coast, have been most skillful as blanket makers."

low relief. The decoration consists of two maidens and a goat-footed satyr dancing in a festival, and is elaborated with carved masks, scrolls and palmettes. The vase probably dates from the first century, A. D., though there are certain indications that it may have been made earlier.

HUMAN CONTACTS

If you like housekeeping but want bigger money returns and more human contacts than a house can give you it is logical that a tea room should seem to you to be a good business.—Woman's Home Companion.
