

PRESENT H. S. PLAY TOMORROW NIGHT

Expect 1700 People to See "The Copperhead" by High School Seniors

With two dress rehearsals and a week of special work on climatic effects, it is expected that the Deerfield-Shields senior class play, "The Copperhead," will be presented with unusual effectiveness tomorrow night, Friday, April 12. The advance sale of tickets has been heavy, and box office sales the night of the performance should mean a full house.

The play is a fascinating Civil War story hinging around the activities of the Copperheads, from which the play receives its name. The costumes and stage settings are characteristic of the period.

The characters are all students of the senior class, of the Deerfield-Shields high school, with the exception of Kathryn Einbecker, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Einbecker, of Lake Forest, who takes the part of Elsie Shanks, three-years old.

The settings, which are being made by Mr. Schneider's shop classes, are completed. Costumes are now ready, some having been rented from a firm in Chicago.

As to transportation, all south-bound North Shore trains will stop at Vine avenue between 7 and 8:30 p. m. and all north bound trains will stop there between 10 p. m. and midnight. A bus from Deerfield and Northbrook will bring passengers to the high school and call for them there at the end of the performance.

An orchestral ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Dinkello, will provide the music before the beginning of the performance and between the acts.

FRANK W. SHEAHEN FUNERAL TOMORROW

He was married about 33 years ago to Miss Caroline Rudolph, daughter of another pioneer family and whose father was George Rudolph. She survives and there are three children. Lloyd W. Sheahen, Earl G. Sheahen and Mrs. H. B. Freberg, all of Highland Park. There are also three grandchildren, Frances and Joan Sheahen, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Sheahen, and William Sheahen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Sheahen.

Other near relatives living are a brother, Charles Sheahen and two sisters, Mrs. William Dooley and Mrs. Jane Mills, all of Highland Park. Three brothers, Daniel, James and John F. Sheahen, are dead, all of whom also were well known citizens in their time.

Frank Sheahen, many years ago, was engaged in the butchering business here; later he sold out to enter the employ of the North Shore Line, at the same time maintaining an artesian water distribution business among a large number of customers. In 1917 he engaged in the coal and material business and continued successfully in that line until his death.

Served City Well

He was city marshal about thirty years ago and served as alderman on the city council. In all his business and political engagements he fulfilled his duties to his patrons and constituents with unflinching efficiency and held always the respect and confidence of all with whom he was associated or had dealings. His friends in the city and vicinity were legion and by all he was greatly beloved for his many fine traits and genial disposition.

He had served as vice-president of the Highland Park Chamber of Commerce and for several years was a member of its board of directors. He was deeply interested in every movement for the welfare and progress of Highland Park and the benefit of its people and he always did his full share in helping along every worth while cause. He was regarded as an honored and honorable citizen, one of those sterling characters whose worth is best manifested by his life and works. The sympathy of the entire community is extended the relatives.

He was a member of the Highland Park Lodge of Elks, the Moose and the Modern Woodmen.

in those early years. Those were times of trial and hardship for the pastors and people, but these sturdy folk never faltered and their faith did not fail. There are many in the membership of Bethany church today who are children and grandchildren of those devoted leaders.

Spirit Remains

While conditions have changed in many ways, the pioneer spirit is still with us. Every age needs some one or some group who can see into the future far enough to realize the necessity of preparing for it in advance. It seems according to the present pastor, that the folk who started the new Bethany church, were of that type and that the future will show them to have been real pioneers in laying out a plan that provides for expansion, and that will care for a constantly increasing church school and social life. The cut used herewith shows the building, not as it is today, but as it will be when entirely completed. The nave is complete, but only the ground story of the church school portion of the building is now completed.

Pastors in Later Years

Among the pastors of later years who served the Highland Park church we mention the following: Rev. B. R. Schultze, Rev. J. G. Schwab, Rev. J. F. Van Evera, Rev. R. W. Schloerb, Rev. J. H. Keagle and Rev. J. G. Finkbeiner.

Bishop L. H. Seager

The last two served during the merger of the churches and the planning of the present building. Rev. J. G. Eller was the presiding Elder at that time. Rev. A. J. Byas, the present presiding elder, whose picture appears herewith, has been a faithful adviser since the beginning of the present pastor's term of service. He will assist in the services of dedication Sunday.

Bishop L. H. Seager, of Le Mars, Iowa, is a forceful speaker and man young in spirit, full of sympathy for young and old, and one whose fellowship will be much enjoyed and long remembered by all who hear his messages and meet him personally. So try and bring your family and friends and share the good things of the day.

All friends of the church are invited to attend these services. This is an invitation from the church through its pastor and board of trustees. Rev. C. F. Schriver, F. C. Noerenberg, W. E. Meierhoff, Frank Miller, A. E. Vetter, A. J. Keller.
