"Very Latest"
 by Cecile

We hesitate to label it the "gob" silhouette, so discretely are the flaring lines that denote the type developed in this smart turban of satin and felt worn by Gladys Baxter, playing in "Music in May."

'Tis one of the chic notes of the season, however — the gob turban. Sometimes, when for the younger set in its teens, the brim is considerably wider at the sides and a cute little loop may finish the crown at the center top. Sometimes, too, the hat is worn at a more rakish angle by both young and older girls. But rarely is it found in more restrained and adaptable form than as you see it here.

Suitable for suits as well as certain ensembles and afternoon frocks of tailored mien, the fabric used in its making may be felt, straw and shallower crown. But it should be remembered that in its extreme types the low crown is only for the youthful person. The majority cannot wear it well without some modification.

Jedge's Josh

Johnson: "Why's Jimpson looking for a cashier? He engaged one only a month ago."

Jackson: "That's the one he is looking for."

Employer: "How would you address the Chaplain of the Fleet?"

His Typist: "Your worship, I suppose."

Dora: "He told me he could live on my kisses forever."

Delia: "Are you going to let him?"

"Not till I find out what I'm going to live on."

Mildred (despondently): "I am to marry Maurice next week, and I am not at all sure that I really love him."

Marjorie: "How positively thrilling!"

She (thoughtfully): "Why do so many women rest their chins on their hands when they are thinking?"

He (brutally): "To keep their mouths shut so that they won't disturb themselves."

felt, crochet straw, gross grain or plain fine straw. And in all cases noted the hat is soft enough to be folded, sailor-fashion, into a small roll convenient for traveling.

Linen Trim Smart for Sports Hats

Facings, scarf ties and bows of linen in white or contrasting colors are detected among the new trimming noted, sponsored by certain French designers for summer sports hats of straw and felt.

One model in navy uses a linen facing that flares in points at the side; several larger hats employ matching scarfs and trims of linen in printed patterns. Piquet in white or pastel colors is also quite successful in the tailored version of cotton trimming.

Crowns are Shallower, But— Without a doubt one of the season's important style notes is the
