Ten Million Poppies Is Goal This Year

A challenge: 30,000,000 poppies are made and sold in England.

Last year, in our country, 8,000,000 were sold.

The goal this year has been set for 10,000,000. Will we be able to sell our 10,000,000—just one-third as many as England, with a small population than that of our own United States, sells?

1,200,000 poppies were sold by the Department of Illinois through its Posts and Auxiliary units last year, at five cents each. Any amount over five cents per poppy received by the unit is kept for relief and service work through its own organization.

All expenditures are carefully made in accordance with a definite budget, prepared by the department executive committee and approved by the State convention. All officers handling funds are bonded. The books are audited by certified public accountants. They are open to inspection at all times, to any person or any organization desiring to investigate, and investigation is welcomed.

In our local unit, all expenditures are voted upon at a regular meeting, an accurate record is kept of all receipts and disbursements, and an annual audit is made.

Dracula Is Proving Sensational Success

"Dracula," the vampire mystery play that Horace Liveright is presenting at the Blackstone theatre, is proving to be the dramatic success of the year. This strange play taken from Bram Stoker's celebrated novel of the same name is one of the most interesting plays that the stage has offered in a long time. It is novel—well written and presented by a cast of exceptional merit. "Dracula" is the first one hundred per cent play that has visited here this season. The critics were unanimous in their praise and Ashton Stevens liked it so well that he wrote an editorial the second Sunday of the thrilling moments that he had spent in the Blackstone theatre during the performance of "Dracula." It is different from all other mystery plays, as it deals with the supernatural and there is no awkward or silly explanation at the conclusion. "Dracula" is a play that you should see, if you enjoy a rapid-fire procession of thrills of the most astounding hair-raising kind.

A notice as to the exact time will appear in a later issue of the Press, giving a program in detail.

The Students Band of the Elm Place school have been engaged to furnish music for the march from the Witten hall to the War Memorial.
