"Very Latest"

by Cecile

Just as no summer wardrobe is complete without one sheer black frock as a foil for its collection of colors, so no lingerie chest is well planned unless there be found in it one charming representative in black—sheerest of black—either lace, georgette, glove silk or chiffon.

And in the name of sheerness—no need to be impractical, as the intriguing garment illustrated proves to us. A singlette in black, the bodice of silk thread lace lined with illusion, the diaphragm section reinforced with strong, confining fabric extending into a concealed girdle—these are its practical and several of its artistic points, finished off with a pantie bottom of illusion trimmed with thread silk medallions in scalloped effect.

Among its blond sisters in flesh tints, sunburn and white—what a dramatic role such a bit of lingerie plays. And how necessary for the one black frock!

Girdles in Contrasting Colors

A distinctly new note is sounded by the latest girdle and bandeau sets which are developed in contrasting colors. One exquisite set in flesh brocaded poplin has triangular insets of blue; another uses peach and a soft shade of leaf green. Quite a novelty, considering the self-tones of the usual corsette.

And Then—Tri-Colors

Right on the heels of the new "sunburn shades" created for those who spend their days lolling about in the sun comes the tri-color mode which bids fair to mark the death of the monotone ensemble.

The new fashion combines three contrasting colors in many new and interesting ways, sometimes using two colors in a trimming motif for the dress made in a basic color, or as accents for scarfs and other accessories.

Three popular combinations are white, Florida yellow and chestnut; black, white and Chanel red; corn, lobster and summer leaf. The use of these colors in ensembles follows the latest fashion note which specifies high, brilliant colors for all occasions.
