YOUR CHECK— Payable 1000 Miles Away

PEOPLE have, rightly enough, come to assume that a bank renders its services with speed and precision. When we take on deposit a check payable at a bank a thousand miles away, the depositor neither knows nor cares how we handle that check. It's our job. And so with many operations which call for particular and, often, special facilities. But they are all at the command of our customers. Our organization works silently and efficiently. As a customer you are interested in the results, not in the processes, and you will, we are sure, find the results satisfactory.
