

ROMAN STRIPES

ROMAN STRIPES are just one of the almost countless patterns and combinations of color in which you may select Half Sox and Socklings. Socklings, you know, are the new thing in children's hosiery. They come just above the top of the oxford—to be worn alone, or as oversox. Imported and domestic. Sizes 5½ to 10, per pair:

Begins Twelfth Week at Garrick Theatre

"A Connecticut Yankee" starts on the twelfth week of the prosperous engagement at the Garrick. Mark Twain wrote the original story in 1889, and the musical comedy version was prepared by Herbert Fields thirty-eight years later.

As first written it was intended as a protest against the hollow shams of court life as lived in the days of thirteen centuries ago. The Twain treatment was a severe chastisement touched with brilliant satire, and the adapter gave the subject matter a second baptism of American slang and wise-cracks. The addition of colorful scenes and a notable musical score, completes an attractive ensemble. The company now appearing at the Garrick has been actively engaged in rendering the performance without any interruption or vacation since the inaugural on October 1, 1927. Further bookings already contracted for outline a program of travel until May 1st, 1930.

Mrs. Charles A. Pardee and family who have been living on Ridgewood drive have taken an apartment in the Udell building.

Mr. Alex Mooney returned Friday from Big Turtle Lake, Wis., where he supervised the completing of the Turtle Waters Country club golf courses.
