She Wouldn't Wear The Hats They Wore in 1910

Why The Glasses?

It is difficult to realize, but not so far back, shell rimmed glasses, cumbersome and conspicuous as they are, were popular. The effect of many a smart street ensemble and evening gown was ruined before glasses were appreciated as a part of dress.

Then Almer Coe & Company, introduced new rimless styles—graceful unobtrusive glasses, with white gold mountings. And now the shell rims are passé. Today they are seldom worn, except for sportswear or for reading at home.

To the few, who may have clung to them because too accustomed to their wear to change, it is suggested that you try one of the new Almer Coe rimless models—we promise you will make an immediate gratifying selection.

For those who require rims, a wide selection of finely designed white gold rimmed frames are available.

Prices Range From $9.50 Up With Solid White Gold Mountings

King Alphonso of Spain recently inherited a one-third interest in his mother's eleven million-dollar estate. But don't be too envious. We will bet that he never enjoyed the exquisite pleasure of sneaking off fishing by himself and letting his feet dangle in the water while he smoked a cob pipe, and dreamed of what he was going to do with his money when he got rich.

An alleged burglar up in Maine was charged, among other things, with stealing thirty pints of elderberry wine valued at fifty cents a pint. It is to be understood of course that the district attorney valued it at pre-war prices.
