Several Prisoners
 from Lake County
 Are Seeking Parole

Albert Coffill, 73, Long Lake truck gardener sentenced to serve one to 14 years in the state penitentiary, is seeking a parole, according to information sent to State's Attorney A. V. Smith.

Harry O. Fellers, of Waukegan, sentenced to serve one to ten years for embezzlement of $125 from the Washington Laundry, is to have a hearing for parole also.

Both cases have been set for the October term of the parole board.

In the Coffill case Col. Smith recommended that the sentence be three years. That was the agreement reached at the time the aged man was sentenced for the slaying of Ervin Snyder, 30, of Lake Villa, July 28, 1928.

Urges Feller's Release

The prosecutor, in his letter to the board, suggested that Fellers be released. He was committed to Joliet October 5, 1928.

Coffill was taken to prison at the same time as Fellers.

Snyder was killed at the end of a drinking bout. He was shot down as he stood unarmed and speechless beside his automobile in front of the Coffill home. Coffill was 15 feet away when he fired.

Trouble had flared up earlier in the day when Coffill took a shot at Dan McHahon, who had been a member of the party.

The aged man made no attempt at flight. Forty-five minutes after the shooting he was found sitting under a tree by a deputy sheriff.

In his letter Col. Smith advised the board that the shooting climaxed a drinking bout at which it was apparent that some of the men were drunk.

The murder charge had been invoked originally but was changed to manslaughter when Coffill agreed to plead guilty.

When Building of House Is Against the Law, Explained

Building a house for sale in Illinois is against the law, unless the house is planned by a licensed architect or unless it cost less than $7,500 to build.

This was the gist of a ruling made by Attorney General Carlstrom last week at Springfield, for the information of officials of the state department of registration and education who have charge of architect's licenses.

The case in question was that of a contractor who planned his own houses and built them on his own land, for immediate sale. No licensed architect was on the job.

Consulting the statutes, Carlstrom said a prohibition against anyone planning the construction of any structure, except for his own use, without the services of a licensed architect. Houses costing less than $7,500 alone were exempt.

In passing, Carlstrom called attention to the wording of the statute which, he said, was awkward and somewhat obscure. However, he adopted the supreme court interpretation which said the architect's law was for the "protection of the public against incompetent architects."

Woodmen in Meeting Condemn Rate Boost; to Continue Fight

Bitter condemnation of the national officers of the Modern Woodmen was contained in resolutions adopted recently by Homewood, Chicago Heights, Harvey and Steger camps in connection with the raise in rates ordered by the officials.

William L. Farmer, of Waukegan, was the speaker of the evening at Homewood and the other three camps were the guests of the Homewood members. Farmer has been a leader in the county in an effort to defeat the increase which he claims is an injustice to older members who have been in the fraternity for years.

The four camps were unanimous in the adoption of the resolutions which were complete denunciations of the business policies of the officers of the national camp.

An injunction proceeding to be heard in the supreme court is hoped to bring relief to the "insurgents" and if this fails the Illinois camps will turn to the right of a referendum for relief.

There was an adverse ruling on the injunction in Chicago courts but Farmer explains that no evidence was presented in behalf of those protesting to the increase.

All Lake county camps have been organized to fight the change in policy and action, in each instance, has been unanimous.

Safety drive is reported for school children. The boys are not much interested in safety, but anything that will show them how to make safe hits at baseball will be eagerly welcomed.
