Militia Called Out in Fight on Insects

The eternal war between mankind and insects has at last forced human beings, thus far the losers in the struggle, to call out acual armies.

In Florida, where the Mediterranean fruit fly suddenly appeared to reinforce other insect pests, four companies of militia were mobilized to police quarantined areas, says Woman's Home Companion, and Congress appropriated $4,000,000 to finance he first stages of the war.

"The Companion has long urged," continues the editorial, "that instead of abolishing armies, we ought to increase them and train them to fight against insects, vermin, floods, earthquakes, fires and storms. Any war ever fought between nations of men was punny as compared to the present and future war between man and these destructive forces of nature. And as yet it is by no means certain that man will be the victor."

Plan to Beautify Highways in State by Planting Shrubs

Highways of Illinois may become more sightly ways in a plan proposed by heads of two state departments proves a success.

Harry H. Cleveland, director of public works, and Rodney Brandon, director of welfare, have pooled the resources for the beautification of the highways, through the planting of trees and shrubs. During the first stages of the project, the beautification program will be concentrated on spots now particularly displeasing to eyes of passing motorists. Later, the plan may be extended to embrace the entire system of highways.

The department of welfare, working through its state institutions will furnish the material and much of the labor for this work. Seedlings developed at the various state institutions will be planted by inmates of the institutions at spots where they are most needed. Maintenance of trees and shrubs after they are planted will be the task of the department of public works. Markers, made at the state reformatory at Pontiac, will be placed wherever trees or shrubs are planted.

632 NORTH MICHIGAN AVE.

When we were becoming established, we put all our money into giving you the best quality of home-made candies. Our shops were neat and clean, and we let them go at that.

Now we have opened a shop on Michigan Avenue, Chicago, in the Woman's Athletic Club building, which we have "decorated." Increased business allows us to do it, for we still give the best in candies at the same moderate prices.
