"Hunting Tigers in India"

An epic talking picture - hear and see Commander G. M. DYOTT in actual man's conflict with the land of the jungles. This is not a staged movie!! "Throughout the picture, which takes the audience through a great part of India, the gentle English accents of Commander Dyott accompany the film, explaining the screen action and throwing interesting light on customs of the hunt." Public and critics have acclaimed it greater than Simba-Chang-Grass - and other pictures of similar purpose. The screen narrative tells the story of the A. S. Vernay expedition sent out under the auspices of the America Museum of Natural History.
