BANNOCKBURN STARTS BOY SCOUT PRESS CLUB

Our meeting opened with the scout oath and law. We discussed the color of our neckerchiefs and finally decided on navy blue. There is also to be the emblem of a wild horse on the back of it. Later we went down to the basement where there were a few boxing matches. Gordon Clavey and John Ginter had the first match, after that William Hastings and Robert Ginter had their match. The matches lasted only one minute. There were no decisions made. William Hastings, Troop 50 Reporter, Wilmot school.

enced cases of flagrant violations, yet we have never carried out the letter of the clause. It was urged as a big stick to preserve order.

"Many prospective purchasers balked at signing a deed under such conditions, but in every case we advisedly told them to overlook the provision, cautioning them always to be discreet. No attempt was ever made to enforce rigidly the contents of the clause."

"I helped to build up a progressive community by insisting there be no enforcement of that wet clause." He admitted frankly that no town would have arisen from the marshy, uncultivated land of early Highland Park if absolute observance had been demanded.

"The last of the corporate property was deeded away about 25 years ago," he said.

Another observation by the former mayor was that the presence of the liquor stipulation had been insisted upon by Evanstonians who were members of the association.

Richard J. Lyons

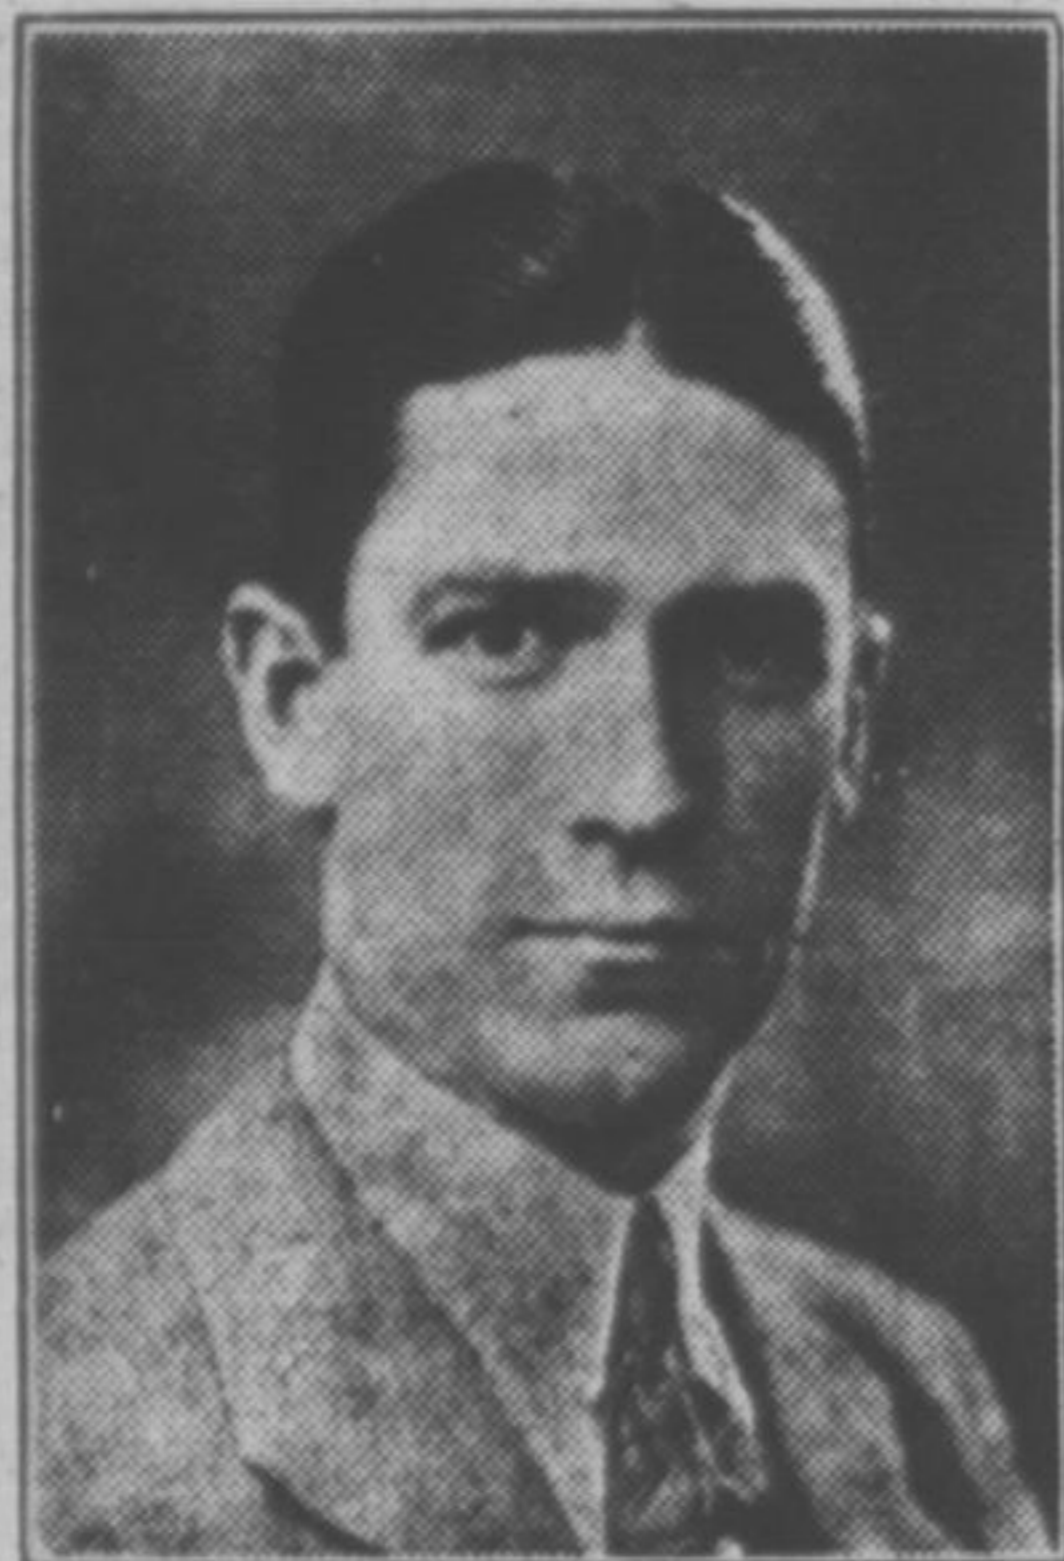

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION AS

REPRESENTATIVE

"Mr. Lyons was active and attentive during the entire Session—was regular in attendance both at committee meetings and at Sessions of the House. Considering it was his first term he did exceptionally well did not attempt making stump speeches for publicity only. The 8th District is fortunate."
