Meeting at Open Air School Well Attended

In spite of adverse weather conditions the large crowd of parents and interested guests who met at Miss Levy's Open Air Nursery school last Monday evening came away all aglow with pride over the fact that Highland Park has such a school available. The occasion was a general get-together for open discussion, with Messers and Mesdames Howell Murray, Leslie Schaffler, Carl Pfantstiehl and Alfred Stern as hosts.

Howie Murray, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced Miss Flora Levy who spoke briefly of the nursery school idea and of her own work and experiences. At present the children range in age from 18 months to five years. Some have been enrolled simply because their parents believe in pre-school education. Others are there to overcome some definite problem such as feeding, sleeping or social adjustment. As the name Open Air Nursery school implies, as much of the time as the weather permits is spent out-of-doors, the children even napping and eating under the sky in the summer. Their play is directed in such a way as to develop motor control, the physique, rhythm and observation, and social contact.

Miss Levy's talk, though brief, was so enthusiastic as to fire others with speech. Some of the parents spoke of the benefits derived by their own children from the school. Mrs. Bastin, first grade teacher in Lincoln school, was most enthusiastic in her praise of the children coming to her from nursery school. And Miss Kirkland, second grade teacher from Elm Place school reiterated the statement that these children need no adjustment when entering the grades and that they are so ready to grasp and retain knowledge. Dr. Winters, consulting physician for the school, stressed the care taken to prevent epidemics of cold and other child diseases through daily routine examination.

Miss Levy is most cordial in urging all parents interested in child training and progressive education to visit her school at 186 Edgecliffe drive and observe the children at work and play.

Woman, 103, Sent from County Home to Elgin

Her memory dimmed by more than a century of life, Mrs. Carrie Buss, 103 years old, who lived to see 11 of her 12 children buried last Saturday watched with interest and amusement a commission of physicians in county court who decreed her insane and ordered her to the state hospital at Elgin.

Mrs. Buss, a resident of Fox Lake for almost 20 years until she was removed to the county farm at Libertyville, enjoyed almost perfect health until she was 99 years old, according to her son, Henry, 47, a laborer living in Fox Lake.

In the last few years her memory has become almost a blank and she has reached a point where she sleeps but little and spends most of the night and day pacing the floor.

The son stated that someone had to watch her constantly.

Hearing on Park Board Assessment No. 9 in the County Court April 28

In the Highland Park East Park District Special Assessment No. 9, the assessment roll was filed March 24, summons issued, and the matter was set down for hearing on April 28, at 10 a. m., in the County court. This is a proceeding for acquiring from the estate of Arthur C. Thomson the property at the corner of Laurel avenue and St. Johns, described as:

All of Lot 1, except the easterly 10 feet thereof, Block 50, in Highland Park.

It is 90 feet deep on Laurel avenue by 240 on St. Johns. The district over which it is spread is that part of Highland Park east of the railroad tracks, south of Vine avenue and north of Beech street. The Park board is sending out a letter with the notice in this assessment, which explains the matter fully to the taxpayers. All the individual assessments are small, and park and city officials are very anxious to have the public understand the matter fully so there will be as few objections as possible.
