On Display

Saturday from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m.

at Waukegan Road and Deerfield Avenue, Deerfield

Cut from a Douglas fir tree out of which nine more logs were cut, besides the one used by Mr. Powers. Each log 22 feet long, in all, making some 50,000 board feet of lumber, about two-car loads, or enough to build six four-room cottages.

Cut in 1926, then 434 years old, and therefore born in the year Columbus discovered America. Visited by more than a million people in 32 states.

This marvelous house on wheels—hewn out of one log—is brought to Deerfield by the Mercer

Lumber Cos. who invite you to visit and make a trip through the house free.

The Mercer Lumber Cos. will be glad to have you call any time for building material information or building materials, and will be glad to help you plan your new home or remodel your old one.

They carry a complete stock of west coast lumber made from big Douglas Fir trees like this one. Douglas Fir lumber lays straight—does not twist nor warp, holds paint, and is easy to saw and nail.
