BETTER HOMES WEEK
BIG SUCCESS HERE

neighborhoods and upon the cultivation of high standards of design, equipment, furnishing and landscaping, and high standards of family life and activities it is possible to maintain the best of our American traditions and to help the home to keep in step with the progress of the arts and sciences.

"The movement for Better Homes in America was inspired and developed under the personal leadership of President Hoover, who still serves as its honorary chairman. The contributions which the thousands of local committees are making to civic welfare through their contests for home improvement, their demonstrations of the better types of home design and furnishings, and their campaigns for neighborhood protection and development are the product of much thoughtful planning and disinterested and unselfish civic service on the part of community leaders, the professions and the educational groups throughout the country.

Home Is Symbol

"The home should be the symbol of our national ideals. Its standards and qualities should reflect all that is best in our national life. There is no home in which it is not possible to make some improvements for convenience, comfort, beauty or wholesomeness. The local Better Homes committees have dedicated themselves to this significant task so that every American family may have opportunity to learn of the next steps which may be taken in the improvement of their own homes and to contribute through their own efforts to healthful, happy childhood, thoughtful parenthood and creative citizenship."

Expresses Appreciation

The following expression of appreciation of the efforts of those who aided in the movement here is issued by Mrs. Kornblith, the local chairman:

We, of the local Better Homes committee, wish to express our gratitude this week to the following men for their willing co-operation: Mayor Van Bergen, Mr. Harry Bentley, Mr. Paul Udell, and the Highland Park Press, as well as all the local firms which have participated in this campaign, to Mr. Knox of the Telephone company, and to Mr. Hecketzweiler

The afternoon group of troop 3, Lincoln school Girl Scouts, will have an investiture of first and second class scouts at their regular meeting on Thursday at Lincoln school. The Tenderfoots are, Rose Mary Cammanns, Evelyn Wayne, Ligette Anderson. The second class, Joan Urchman.

The evening group of troop 3, Lincoln school, are working diligently at their first aid work. It is most valuable for them to acquire this knowledge with such definiteness and accuracy.

Angelo Patri says of girl scouts: "Now there are Girl Scouts and things are different. A girl is no longer handicapped by the idea that she must hide the truth about herself. She is free to keep step and stride with her mate to beat him to the goal if she can. She can stretch her arms, her legs and back and grow in real grace and beauty without fear of losing taste. A beautiful girl of today is one with wind-swept cheeks, sunkissed, rain washed, one in whose eyes shines the light of a disciplined and ripened consciousness; one who looks straight out on the world without blinders and knows it for what it is, a mixture of smiles and tears, of bitterness and honeydew, of hourly wistful living. Thus armed, body mind and spirit, the Girl Scout goes out blithely to have a hand in the scuffle. More power, more honor to her. She is the heart's blood of America."

The Girl Scout is the symbol of the coming generation, free, strong, competent and clean. We, of the older day, salute her. May her numbers increase.

and the Gsell Drug Co., for their assistance with the photographs. We also wish to thank the following women for acting as hostesses at the High School Built House and the house and garden on Linden avenue: Mesdames Venning, Warmington Carr, Wolff, Haller, Rieser, Clark, Reitz, Gehr, Beach, Kelley, Lee Frank, E. C. Jones, Claburn Jones, Lebolt, L. Golden, Roger and Carlton Vail, Seymour, J. Hoffman, R. Hastings, Bede, Garnett, Hobart, Raff, Wagner, Chapman, Dingle, and the Misses James, Harlem, Trevisan, and on the Grounds committee, the following: Miss Esther Davidson, Miss Susan Klaber, members of the Ravinia Garden club, the Highland Park Community Garden class, and the Highland Park Garden Study club, Mrs. E. Christenson, Mrs. F. J. S. Farrell, Mrs. F. Rodgdon, Mrs. McKnight, Mrs. F. C. Atwill, under the leadership of Mrs. Doretta Klaber. We hope that we have not omitted any names of those who have given so generously of their time and energy in this vital community service.

Gratefully yours,
Babette S Kornblith, Chairman.
