Ravinia Tennis Club Notes; Weather Halts Tourney Preparation

Just as play was beginning on the Ravinia Tennis club courts the "heavens opened and the floods descended" thereby doing away with the work of getting the club courts into tournament form. Many of the members, however, found it possible to start intensive practice by shutting their garage doors and banging the ball back and forth.

The high school courts also came in for their daily abuse and several players are wearing their hats very lightly on sunburned brows as a result of Saturday's and Sunday's activities.

The ground attendant at the Ravinia Tennis club courts reports that rain, shine, fire or theft he will have some courts ready in A1 shape by the end of this week.

Information relative to playing conditions can be obtained from Jerry Leaming or Eugene Kern any evening during the week after supper.
