much to operate

The old idea that a sizable, powerful car was expensive to buy and operate is being thoroughly disproved by the figures supplied by Cadillac and La Salle owners.

The slightly higher monthly payments, under the convenient G. M. A. C. plan, are not burdensome.

And this small additional purchase price is rapidly cancelled by the surprising savings per thousand miles of operation.

At the end of 25,000 miles, you'll find that you have paid little, if any more, for operation and maintenance than your present car costs. At 50,000 miles the economy advantage will be even greater.

May we present the facts for your consideration?
