WOMEN ON JURIES FAVORED BY LEAGUE

franchisement of women by amendment to our constitution, the attorney general of the state gave it as his opinion that a legislative enactment would be required to make women eligible to fulfill this duty of citizenship, and the state legislature refused to pass such acts until more than eight years had elapsed. During these years Illinois citizens were denied the benefits incident to having the combined viewpoints of men and women expressed in the jury box. In both our state and nation it has been recognized that the ballot box should give opportunity for the expression of the viewpoints of all of our citizens of mature age, and it can scarcely be less desirable that the judicial system should recognize such differing viewpoints and take advantage of them.

Real Need

"There are many cases in which young girls and women must appear before grand juries and in our criminal courts, young girls and women many times wholly without any responsibility for the situation in which they find themselves. They are entitled to the consideration of other women, and the very real aid which may be afforded to them by the presence of women in the jury box.

"Women are now called to jury service in 21 states, among them all of the states touching Illinois boundaries except Missouri; also in Alaska. England at once required such service from her women when she had extended to them the right of suffrage. Women who have served upon juries in some of these states express the opinion that the experience will be an educational force of great value to the community. It is also an interesting comment made by several judges in other states that once having experienced the advantages of mixed juries, neither judges, lawyers or litigants would care to go back to juries of just men."

Delinquent Tax List Exceeds All Records

The delinquent tax lists in Lake county this year will number over 91,660 different parcels, by far the greatest figure ever recorded here, County Treasurer Morse reports. Last year taxes became delinquent on 77,590 pieces of real estate.

Since May 1, the date on which all taxes became delinquent, the staff of the treasurer's office has been working day and night and Sundays to get up the lists in order to comply with the law which requires all land tax delinquencies to be published.

Each description is now subject to a fine equal to the advertising cost plus 1 per cent of the tax. An additional 1 per cent will be added to the fine on taxes that remain unpaid after this month and until July 22, when delinquent tax will start, Mr. Morse stated.

The advertising cost for land descriptions is 26 cents each, and on lot descriptions 16 cents each.
