Legion Believes All Should Bear Equal Burdens in War Time

The three-quarters of a million members of the American Legion, the average annual strength of this organization, learned two things well in their service in the World war. The first of these two things was to get down to the fundamental principle in any big undertaking. The second thing was, team work, or unity of purpose, in carrying out the fundamental principle, and not be swerved aside by distracting and petty interruptions.

The habit of sticking to a fundamental principle came when these Legionnaires surmounted the many personal discouragements of training camps and in the field or on the sea. The habit of team work came in attaining the far flung objectives despite those personal discouragements. The lone hand in the army was doomed to permanent failure. Only in hewing close to the fundamental principle, together and unitedly, was success possible.

Those lessons have kept the Legion alive to one fundamental principle which it never will forget, nor relinquish. That principle is found in the Legion's request that "equal service for all and special privilege or profit to none in time of war" be enacted into the basic law of our land. The Legion knows that principle is fair and just. It knows it is not fair, nor just, for the youth of our country to be compelled to do the work of war, at menial pay and with all danger, while others roll in the lap of luxury at home, and in no danger. The Legion believes the dollar, and natural resources, should work as unselfishly as the soldier in time of war.

For more than a decade, the Legion has stuck to that principle. Many measures for the operation of the principle have been proposed, but the Legion, knowing that its strength is in team work, discards all tacky arguments about how this bill, or that bill, would operate, or would not operate.

Combined, these three-quarters of a million veterans, believing in the fundamental principle, insist that a competent commission be provided by congress, in order that any arguments may be settled by all the elements of our people in a fair and just way. Such a commission is provided in the Reed-Wainwright resolution now pending in congress, and the Legion deserves to have its voice heeded, and the principle studied, in order that a satisfactory plan for the operation of the principle can be devised. It is up to congress to grant that request.

TRAGIC DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT

while the family was willing to aid in this matter, she had not wished to accept assistance, it was explained by relatives.

Appeared Cheerful

Mrs. Brown and a younger sister, Eloise, 18 years old, had no hesitancy in leaving Miss Brown Saturday morning while they shopped. She was seemingly cheerful after a visit from friends Friday. Upon their return they found the door locked and once inside the house, discovered the young woman dead on her bedroom floor. Chief of Police Jake Rudolph of Glencoe was called from his home next door by the mother and younger sister.

Funeral Tuesday

The funeral service was held Tuesday from the family residence in Glencoe, and interment was in Memorial Park, Evanston. It was attended by many friends of the family and floral offerings and other manifestations of sympathy were many.

Mr. Brown said Tuesday that the family very deeply appreciated the assistance and sympathy given by many friends in Highland Park and elsewhere on the north shore at this time and the many expressions of esteem and condolence which they had received.
