

Rethberg, Giovanni Martinelli, Giuseppe Danise, Ina Bourskaya, Virgilio Lazzari and others. Gennaro Papi, conducting. Here is Italian opera of the transitional period; opera which marked the abandonment of the classic method and the beginning of that in which dramatic value was to be stressed. Through it, Verdi created a furor among the musical cognoscenti of his own land, who little realized at the moment that what was to become the world's most popular music-drama had been created. But Verdi, in stressing the drama of this great love story, sacrificed nothing of that melody for which Italy had always been famous. With Mme. Rethberg in the name part and with Mr. Martinelli as Radames, this work achieves the acme of perfection in its interpretation.

"Louise" by Charpentier, with Yvonne Gall, Edward Johnson, Julia Claussen, Leon Rothier and others. Louis Hasselmans, conducting. This modern work was incorporated into the Ravinia repertoire a few seasons ago as a special vehicle for Yvonne Gall, who so quickly won the admiration of her auditors that she has been a member of the Ravinia coterie ever since. Edward Johnson has been equally successful in the role of Julian, while Leon Rothier scores a triumph as the father. It speaks of life—life as it is lived in the present, when the spirit of unrest is rampant and youth is seeking what it calls "self-expression." Tensely dramatic, thoroughly human, starkly realistic and yet fantastically spectacular, "Louise" has become a classic.

Saturday Night, June 28

"Il Trovatore" by Verdi, with Elisabeth Rethberg, Giovanni Martinelli, Julia Claussen, Giuseppe Danise and others. Gennaro Papi, conducting. This immortal Verdi work is a prime favorite at Ravinia not only because of the greatness of its music, but likewise because of the splendid coterie of artists available for its principal roles. Mme. Rethberg, Mr. Martinelli, Mr. Danise and Mme. Claussen have time and again demonstrated their ability fully to meet its exacting and strenuous demands. By reason of their vocal attainments, its magnificent arias and duets are lifted to new heights, and even the most habitual opera-goer must realize that Giuseppe Verdi was, after all, a past master of the art of creating enduring melody.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university delivered an address against the American protective tariff before the Cobden society in London. The Doctor picked out the spot where such a speech deserved the loud applause it got.
