

ST. JAMES SCHOOL HOLDS GRADUATION

At the appointed moment, the 10 graduates knelt to receive holy communion. After them came their dear ones, to share in the happiness of this day with their children. Before the awarding of diplomas, which took place immediately after mass, the reverend pastor of St. James, Father Holley, spoke a few eloquent words of congratulation and of warning to his young boys and girls, who in leaving the school must not, he said, leave behind its teachings.

Words of Counsel

Their faithful teachers, he reminded them, would always be watching their efforts, eager to give help and counsel in those new paths which they, as budding men and women, must learn to walk bravely, holding themselves and their faith firm and unspotted from the temptations of the world. Surely a faith that has behind it the vast experience of 1900 years can be trusted to guide its children to right living and noble thinking. The need of higher education was stressed emphatically, as father exhorted parents to count the cost as nothing in comparison with the tremendous advantages which would most certainly crown their sacrifices. arose. With their fragrant arm bou-

Once more the tiny boys and girls quets of white roses they filed into the sanctuary. After them five girl graduates clad in dainty frocks of pink, green, lavender and yellow, and five earnest-faced boys, all proudly wearing their class colors of green and gold, passed up the steps to the altar, where each received from their kindly pastor the diploma which represents so much effort, so many years of endeavor.

The Graduates

Those of the 1930 class were: Jane Elizabeth Sheahan, Thomas Anthony Brennan, Margaret Helen Innocenzi, Guido Berti, Santa Ann Pelicrini, Charles Harold Sheahan, Yolanda B. Santi, Richard Gilbert McNeil, Mary Santi, Arthur John Bernardi.

From the church the honored band proceeded to the adjoining rectory lawn, where the usual class picture was taken. Each departing class of graduates has its own class photograph hanging in the corridor of the school. This year's group will be added in September to the growing number.

We heartily congratulate these former pupils of St. James. Sunday's closing was a brilliant climax to the school entertainment of last Wednesday, when they proved themselves excellently well-trained, and contributed to an evening most enjoyable to the audience which packed the hall to the doors.

Many Fine Numbers

This reporter has had a difficult time selecting out of the many fine numbers, any special one as the best. The delightfully executed Virginia reel was the favorite of many. Some much preferred the small first graders in their Grand Baby Show. Others again were enthusiastic over the clowns from Circusland, with their screamingly funny sayings and doings. Then were found those who voted that the patriotic marching and Flag song with its loyally emphatic Flag salute, should be first choice.

So, one must conclude with practically all of these, "Well, but they were all so good!" However, great applause should be given to those who, in their rendition of parts in the class play, "My Aunt's Heiress" won the admiration of all.—Miss Jane Sheahan, the sweet, self-effacing younger daughter who by her tender pity for the old and friendless, deserved the inheritance of Mrs. De Courcay Smith; Miss Mary Santi, the hard-worked maid, whose fit of hysterics sent the whole audience into peals of laughter; and Miss Kathleen Smith, who so splendidly played the role of the haughty, irritable old Aunt DeCourcay. All who attended this latest one of St. James entertainments were not disappointed, but richly repaid for their support of these children. — Contributed.

If the British navy is still superior to ours because of its preponderance of merchant ships, why can't we remedy that by building more merchant ships? There's no agreement against that.

THERE'S FALSE ECONOMY IN DOLLAR CLEANING

Do you think it is wisdom or true economy to trust your garments to a cleaner who expects to, and must slap bang them through his plant with the assistance of underpaid help and inferior cleaning ingredients in order to cut a possible 25c or 50c from the cleaning cost?

How long do you suppose your garments are going to last under this kind of treatment? How much damage is done each time your garment makes a trip to and from the "sweat shop" cleaner?

THERE'S TRUE ECONOMY IN MIRACLEAN

Garments entrusted to us are handled with the utmost care, nothing is slighted, no corners are cut, the life of your garments is not shortened but lengthened, for our Miraclean process restores fabrics as well as colors to their newness and beauty and leaves no oil or impurities to attract dirt. There is true economy in Miracle-cleaned garments. They wear and stay clean longer and our prices of $1.25 for men's suits and $1.50 up for ladies' dresses are as low as good workmanship and service will permit.
