Otto Pfeister, 27, of 4241 North LeClaire avenue, Chicago, was drowned last week in Slocum Lake, near Wauconda, while his wife and three-year-old son looked on. The tragic accident came as an end to a one day vacation at the lake.

For the fourth time since last September the Wadsworth grade school was broken into, and last week deputy sheriffs and police declared, the thieves smashed dishes and damaged articles in the building in their haste.

Leaping from a boat into seven feet of water, believing it to be shallow, John Hulinger, 26, of 1813 Cleveland avenue, Chicago, was drowned in Pistakee Bay, Fox Lake, last Thursday.

Throughout the rural school system of Lake county there were 248 pupils who were neither tardy nor absent for the year according to the list prepared by the teachers from County Superintendent of Schools T. A. Simpson.

Little Girl Finds and Returns Money

Mrs. William Hamilton of Beach road, Zion, is thanking "her lucky stars" that little 12 year old Alberta Wilson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Ford Wilson of Zion, is an honest child.

Last week as Alberta was returning from Waukegan on a Metropolitan Motor Coach, the girl moved up in the bus and sat down in a seat just vacated by a woman leaving the bus at Beach. The little girl sat there for some time before she noticed a pocketbook lying in the seat beside her. Investigation revealed that it contained $42 in cash and a letter addressed to Mrs. Hamilton.

The child took the purse to her home and notified Mrs. Hamilton who called for her property and rewarded the little girl.

Crying Babies Often Children of Weeping Mothers, Says Writer

The raucous crying of babies, the greatest menace to their popularity, in many cases can be blamed upon mothers who themselves were cry-babies in childhood, in their teens and often after marriage, according to Ruth Moore Morriss, writing in The Country Home.

"If mothers would realize the true significance and insignificance of tears, weeping, except for legitimate and honorable purposes, could be stamped out of the race," says the writer. "When a child has learned in infancy, the power of tears, they will be used to solicit sympathy for maladjustment and sheer awkwardness, rather than for emotional relief.

"A girl will cry because she can't dance as well as older girls. She will weep when her popular elder sister dashes off to parties and she is left alone to the doubtful pleasure of sleep or a book.

"If the well meaning parents still persist in their earlier attitude and pay too much attention to her tears they become an even more fixed habit than they were in early childhood and the weeping adolescent girl becomes the weeping woman.

"Women have not only early training to combat but all the history of the race—the idea of woman as a weakling and weeping as a necessary feminine trait. Not so long ago if women didn't do a certain amount of crying they were considered emotionally incoherent. Clinics are full of women who have wept their way into hysteria. They are difficult to cure because in the early stages they don't want to be cured. They found that tears are an effective means of avoiding life, of not looking it sanely and squarely in the face."

With the golf season in full swing, reports have come in to Sheriff L. A. Doolittle that petty thieves have been operating at the various clubs in the county. A thorough investigation at the Bonnie Brook Golf club last week by Deputy Frank Suhadolnik Jr., resulted in the discharge of several caddies whose actions were questionable.
