graved silver cup will be presented to the person or persons judged to have the most novel entry in the parade. Decorated bicycles, horses, or any other creation may be used.

Races at Park

As soon as the parade reaches Sunset park the races will begin. These will include 25 yard races for boys and girls from 5 years to 9. 50 yard races will be run by boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 13, while open races will be run for all over 13. Among the novelty races will be a boy's sack race of 50 yards, a girl's three-legged 50 yard race, a boy's wheelbarrow race of 25 yards each way and a relay of four boys from each playground. Prizes will be given in all these events, consisting of medals and ribbons.

At 4:00 p. m. the girls' open tennis singles will be played. In this event gold, silver, and bronze medals will be the prizes. At 4:30 the intermediate horseshoe tournament is scheduled, and at 7:00 p. m. the senior horseshoe tournament. Gold, silver, and bronze medals are offered in all these.

Evening Stunt Program

Beginning at 7:45 in the evening the stunt program will be offered at the dance floor of the park. The dancing class groups from the playgrounds will present four of their dances: "Singing in the Rain," "Lonely Troubadours," "Bell Hop," and a soldier's drill. Among the other stunts will be a tumbling exhibition, comic boxing, exhibition dancing, and many other humorous stunts. The groups presenting the two best stunt programs will be given small, engraved silver cups.

Invitations are being sent out to the parents of all children enrolled at the playgrounds, and it is urged that every one should come out for this day. A lot of fun is offered, and the children are working hard to make their end of the affair a success.

Castle-Building Contest

A castle-building contest was held last Saturday at the Roger Williams beach. This contest was open to both boys and girls, and was begun at 10:30 a. m. Each child was given a square yard of sand and given a half hour to build his castle. Kenneth Borgeson, an entrant from Port Clinton park playground, finished his castle and was judged to have the best of the boys' entries. Bernice Kurtzon won the contest that the girls had, and the race was so close that several outside judges had to be called in to settle the conflict.

Movies at Park

"The Yankee Clipper," a thrilling story of the sea, was shown at Sunset park last Friday evening to a huge audience. The showing was free of charge, and along with the main picture were shown some reels of local tournaments and beach activities. The pictures were enjoyed by everyone, and the fact that the showing was out-of-doors made it even more enjoyable.

Friend Contributes Following Tribute to the Late Mrs. Goodnow

a little of everything. This policy was a part of the thoroughness with which she did things. It was her third trip to Europe.

Returning, she addressed her energies to the building of a new house on a wooded lot in the Ridgewood section on South Green Bay road, not far from her former home. This house she planned herself, small, a house for one person with a judicious economy of space, however, which included room for visiting friends, children or grandchildren. During this period she was living in Glencoe in an apartment which she had taken for the summer and which was only a short distance from the home of her son, Mr. Albert C. Goodnow. Two weeks before her death, a state of despondency came upon her and she appeared suddenly to lose much of the interest which had formerly engrossed her. She visited the house less frequently, a fact which could be easily attributed to the very hot weather which always caused her much suffering.

Anna Nichols Goodnow was born at Lisbon, Ohio. At the age of four, her parents moved to a farm near State Center, Iowa, where as the eldest of five children, she grew to womanhood. She was graduated from Ames college in 1885 in the same class with her future husband, George F. Goodnow. During the years following graduation, Anna Nichols taught school while George Goodnow attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and graduated. In 1889 they married and settled in Dedham, Mass., where the first son, Albert C. Goodnow, was born. In 1893 they moved to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where a second son, George Nichols Goodnow was born. In 1899 they moved to Waukegan, Ill., where they lived for fifteen years. In 1914, they purchased from Fayette S. Munro five acres adjoining his property on the South Green Bay road, where they lived until last year as valued and substantial members of this community.

Mrs. Goodnow is survived by her two sons, Albert C., member of the George F. Goodnow company, engineers, 120 S. LaSalle street, and George N., of Toledo, Ohio, who at the age of nineteen was one of the first of our boys to go over-seas, serving in the famous 149th F. A.

For several years Mrs. Goodnow was a very efficient member of the house committee of the hospital board. She loved music and felt a deep civic pride in Ravinia Park and was an active member of the Ravinia club. But for the most part she lived quietly, as the world would say, in her home on the Green Bay road, yet she lived actively and intelligently always. She was ever a student, a reader, and a thinker. She liked the worthwhile things in music, in painting, in books, on the stage and her criticisms were vigorous and independent. She was a woman who never called herself "educated," who believed education in its proper sense to be co-existent with life itself, terminating only with life. Although Anna

N. Goodnow was not known to a large number of people, yet those who enjoyed the rare privilege of her friendship will not soon forget its invigorating quality, the sharp challenge of her thinking and the Spartan integrity of her ideals. Bravery and truth and love of beauty were hers, and they cannot die; for wherever there are hearts that love these things, that immortal part of her will find a home.
