the dominant part. In the third, the courts, she should be accorded the privilege and the right to use her influence for good, and she should welcome the duty to serve in any capacity that she may be called. Among the most important of which is that of service upon the jury."

Why Exclude Women?

In Illinois, those ineligible for jury service at present are minors, aliens, criminals, defectives and women. Women may vote, may hold office, may sue and be sued and are engaged in the same pursuits as men. Why should they be excluded from the jury box?

The women-on-juries referendum comes up for vote at the November election, and every voter will have the opportunity of saying "yes" to the amendment which places women on the jury lists. The following points may be of interest:

Women usually have more time than men to serve on juries, and often would be able to supply the viewpoint of the very desirable class of professional (and other) men exempt from service.

Proper Exemptions

There would be proper exemptions for women. Those who were ill, or who had the care of small children as well as others with legitimate excuses would not be required to serve.

Service would not be required oftener than once every two or three years if that.

The cases which are called "unfit for women to hear" usually involve other women (often young girls) who should have the comfort and protection of women in the courtroom.

In the case of mixed juries, proper quarters have been, and will be provided insuring privacy for the women.

In the twenty-one states in which the system is already functioning successfully, women have proven themselves to be attentive, just, and conscientious.

Two somewhat similar parables will be studied next Sunday morning in the series of the Parables of Jesus, the one of the two debtors and the one of the unmerciful servant; the two taken together throw light on the program of Forgiveness and open up very different lines of thought from any thus far considered. The pastor's discourse on these will certainly interest all who attend. It is very encouraging to note the continued interest manifested in these studies by regular attendance at our services.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society held its monthly meeting this week Tuesday at the home of Mrs. A. W. Yowell, Oakwood avenue, with a "Potluck" luncheon at 1 p. m.

An expert on prayer is not often a theologian, even though he write a book about it, but is more apt to be some one occupying a very humble place in life but who has learned the real values in prayer by daily practice of it through days that have been burdened with great needs.
