North Shore Police Are Planning Radio Service in Tracing Criminals

Under the guidance of the north branch of the Cook County Police Chiefs' association, plans are quietly going forward to the establishment of a chain of radio broadcasting stations in communities along the north shore and in those in the northwestern part of Cook county, as an arm against organized crime in the isolated sections of the county.

Police Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston, is in charge of the project.

The first station will probably be at Glencoe, although work on such a station will undoubtedly not be started for some time. It is planned however, to equip it with a low wave apparatus sufficient in power to establish a communication with the police of Waukegan, as well as those of Evanston, Wilmette, Kenilworth and Winnetka and other north shore cities.

Another station is pictured at Morton Grove or Niles Center to protect western suburbs and in Northbrook, Northfield or Glenview for the police of Barrington, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines.

The various stations, as outlined in the chief's plan, would be connected with telephone wires. A conference of police authorities in other regions of Cook county is on the program, which eventually will embrace the entire county.

Special Awards For Four-H Club Members

Special awards by Senator Arthur Capper, of silver and bronze medals to the two 4-H club girls who enter Lake county's best jars of home canned fruits, vegetables and meats in the National Canning contest at Shenandoah, Iowa, where the contest is being held under the auspices of the Household Science institute.

Senator Capper, long a friend of the 4-H clubs and a member of the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Work, in making the awards said that he hoped these awards would serve to encourage home canning work among farm girls and that they would prove of value to 4-H club leaders and extension workers in furthering this work.

The Capper medals are in addition to the list of 470 prizes totaling $4,250 in cash, loving cups and ribbons which will be distributed to the winners in the contest. The grand sweepstakes award of the contest carries with it a cash prize of six hundred dollars.

The contest is open to every woman and girl. There are no restrictions as to the nature of the food sent. Contestants may enter the fruit, vegetable or meat division, any two of these divisions, or all three.

LIBRARY

How to Get Good Service

"Hello! Is this the library? I want to know . . . ? That is the way to get good service from your public library. Telephone ahead, stating fully the information you desire and the time you plan to arrive. You will then avoid waiting.

Give the library time to look up material which you want. It often takes longer than one would think to find the names of all the cities of 50,000 population within a radius of 100 miles of Chicago, or a poem which contains the line, "I've had my picking of sweethearts."

If you telephone or write ahead, you give the library a chance to borrow books from the Illinois State Library association to supplement the material the library has on hand. Any public library the size of Highland Park's is dependent for exceptional requests to a large degree upon its neighboring libraries. The library will get you what you want or it will tell you where you can examine the material. "Information is of two kinds, knowing a thing and knowing where you can find out about it."

To obtain the most popular books of the day, the best way is to take out "reserves" for them. The cost of this service is one cent for each reserve, which covers only the cost of the postal. The library reserves about 200 books a month.

Always Ask for What You Want

"I can never find anything I want here at the library," is a common complaint. Of course you can't find what you want. Libraries, the larger they are and the more progressive they are need some interpretation. It is the pleasure of every assistant to see that you are provided with what you came to the library for.

Found

Found, in the north east corner of the library on the magazine table in the Highland Park public library, one of the most friendly and comfortable black pipes it has ever been our pleasure to rescue. It may be had for the asking at the main desk.

The College Student and His Problems

Certain books of counsel, teaching young men and women how best to shape their ideals and their lives, played an honorable part in the literature of the nineteenth century, particularly in America, where aspiring youth is eager to learn the secret of noble success. These books, so gratefully remembered by older men, have since become less powerful as an aid to a younger generation.

The following titles issued within recent years will be of interest to parents and students:

Our Faith in Education, by Henry Suzzallo.

Youth in a World of Men, by Mrs. M. P. L. Johnson.

Changing College, by E. H. Wilkins.

Aims of Education, by A. N. Whitehead.

Social Interpretation of Education, by J. K. Hart.

Which College? by Mrs. R. S. Halle.

The Effective College, by R. L. Kelly.

American Universities and Colleges, by D. A. Robertson.

College—What's the Use, by H. E. Hawkes.

Eight o'Clock Chapel, by C. H. Patton.

Which Way Parnassus? by Percy Marks.

The Child and the Book

The following reviews were written by the children:

Twain by Tom Sawyer—"It was a scary story. He did so many daring things. If Aunt Poll had known, I don't think he'd been living. I liked when he ran away that time, and hid under the bed and heard all they was sayin'."

Altsheler. Border watch—"Mostly about Henry Wrae. He was so strong, brave, skillful, a good trailer, large and muscular."

Lorenzini. Adventures of Pinocchio—"I liked it because Pinocchio lived in so many places. Didn't have to live in just one house."

Poetry—"Don't care much for poems unless I have to learn them, but I did like the Village Blacksmith."

Nash. Polly's secret—"Liked it so well that when I got through I wished it had just started."

—Wisconsin Library Bulletin.

Labor Day

The Highland Park public library will be closed on Monday, September 1st.

"The greatest pleasure in life is that of reading while we are young."

Mining Peat on Farm in Lake Zurich Region

Peat of a high grade for use commercially as a seed base in greenhouses and for the breaking up of heavy clay soils, has been found and is being mined on the Clover Hill farms west of Lake Zurich, it was learned today.

Venton Dondenville, manager of the farm which is owned by the Owens brothers, who also conduct the Etching company of North America in Chicago. The peat deposit is about 20 acres in extent and has been pronounced as the finest deposit in Illinois because of its age and fine texture.

Machinery has been moved into the peat field and it is being dug out, crushed and placed in containers to be sent to market.

Soil experts from the University of Illinois have examined the peat and praised it highly. Samples were put on display in New York and Chicago and already big orders are pouring in to the office of the Clover Hill farms.
