

REVIEW OF OPERA SEASON AT RAVINIA

Notable Performances by Great Artists; Many New Features; General Summary

Seventy-three nights of opera and twenty orchestral concerts—such is the record that must be set down to the credit of Ravinia when the nineteenth season of this artistic institution came to a close on Monday night, Sept. 1. As announced at the beginning of the season, there were no Monday night concerts this year as there have been in seasons past, these nights all being devoted to operatic performances. There were however, eleven Sunday afternoon concerts and nine—these for children—on Thursday afternoons. At one of the ten children's afternoon affairs, the orchestra did not appear, the music being furnished by military bands from the Great Lakes Naval station and from Fort Sheridan.

During the ten weeks and three days of the season which began on Saturday night, June 21, thirty-six operas were brought to performance, which is three more than were given last year. This is an achievement with which to conjure when one takes into consideration what it means to
