

DEMOCRATS SELECT JUDICIAL DELEGATES

List of Members of Party in the County to Go to Woodstock Convention

Delegates from Lake county will go to the district judicial caucus of the Democratic party to be held in Woodstock uninstruced as to the candidate they will favor, it was decided at the meeting of the Lake County Central committee in the Hotel Waukegan, last week. Indications are, however, that the chairman, John O'Keefe, will name the candidate to be favored when nominations are made at the caucus.

Twenty delegates and alternates were selected at the meeting.

The platform of the Democratic party framed at the Springfield convention was reaffirmed by unanimous vote, but the county platform was postponed until the executive committee should meet.

Democratic leaders urged the inauguration of a campaign this fall that may be spirited beyond precedent. To this end Chairman John O'Keefe ordered that each precinct committeeman appoint a committee-woman to gather support among the women voters.

The delegates chosen are as follows:

Great Lakes Station Is Not Likely to Be Abandoned Is Belief

Indications that agitation in the war department relative to the closing up of the Great Lakes Naval Training station has been definitely dropped and that the station will continue to function as at present, were forthcoming last week when the war department announced plans to discontinue several Atlantic coast shore stations as an economy move, says the Waukegan News-Sun.

The plans call for the consolidation of several stations, the closing down of others and the sale of all obsolete and unnecessary equipment. Some months ago the reports stated that the Great Lakes Naval Training station was in the paring knife's line of retrenchment, but the report caused such a furore among naval dignitaries and midwest residents that the plan was silenced.

As many as a dozen yards and shore properties no longer considered necessary to the efficient operation of the naval establishment face elimination or drastic curtailment of activities, largely as a result of an exhaustive study of naval activities made by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahneke and chiefs of bureaus of the navy.

Naval officers in touch with the situation state that millions of dollars could be saved in maintenance costs through the closing down of certain shore properties, the disposal of other plants, and the sale of all surplus equipment not needed by the navy at present.

Plan Election on Bond Issue to Finance More Sewage Disposal Plants

Plans for a conference with Mayor L. J. Yager of Waukegan, to be followed by a joint session with the Waukegan city council, concerning location of the proposed $1,000,000 sewage disposal plant in that city, a dispute unsettled for many months, was decided upon at a meeting of the North Shore Sanitary District board last week in Waukegan, preparatory to selecting a date for the bond issue election.

The tentative dates for submission of the question of erecting seven new plants in the district to the voters are either Oct. 2 or Oct. 9, John Oliver of Highland Park, president of the board, said after the meeting, but this depended to a large extent on the outcome of the conference with Mayor Yager and later the council, a settlement concerning its location first being mandatory, he explained.

Should the issue carry, but Waukegan vote against it, the plant in that city would not be erected at this time, according to the board. It is probable that an educational campaign to point out the evils of polluting the lake by sewage will be carried on, and the board is contemplating such a plan.

The other plants proposed, at Winthrop Harbor, Zion, North Chicago, Lake Forest, Lake Bluff, and Highland Park, would, however, be erected at once, the board states.
