

Brilliant Climax of Deerpath Anniversary
in Pictures Next Week

In a brilliant climax of its second anniversary period the Deerpath theatre at Lake Forest during the coming week will present a series of exceptionally excellent talking pictures, among which Will Rogers in "So This Is London," and "The Big House," the famous prison, with a galaxy of famous stars are the headliners. The list for the week follows:

Friday, Sept. 19—Last showing of "Hell's Island," with Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Dorothy Sebastian.

Saturday, Sept. 20 (matinee and evening)—"Sweethearts on Parade," with Lloyd Hughes, Marie Provost, Kenneth Thompson and Ellis White. A hilarious romance in which sailors and marines on shore leave have a grand time. Plenty of laughs.

Sunday, Sept. - (continuous 2 to 11 p. m.)—William Powell, with Kay Francis in "For the Defense." Gay, debonair spender, lover of women and bright lights, brilliant criminal lawyer, the best friend a crook ever had—that's Bill Foster—so clever the cops won't believe he's straight.

Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 22 and 23—Will Rogers, in George M. Cohan's international stage success, "So This Is London." More amusing than "They Had to See Paris." Will Rogers takes a hand at guiding a romance and putting over a stupendous business deal, and he's funnier than ever.

Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 24 and 25—"The Big House," with Chester Morris, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Robert Montgomery, Leila Hyams, J. C. Nugent, Carl Dane and a score of others in a romance that vies with drama for thrills. A motion picture sensation.

Friday, Sept. 26 (one day only)—"Pardon My Gun," with Sally Starr, George Duryea, Mona Ray, Lee Moran, Robert Edeson, in a novel western picture comedy filled with drama, music and song.
