Plan Orchestra Work in Grammar Schools; Elm Place Starting

We all know what a valuable part music plays in the education of our youth and how much pleasure, as well as profit, is derived from the ability to play in an orchestra in grade schools, high schools and colleges.

With the realization that to attain his ability a child using stringed instruments must begin his studies in the grade school period, the board of education and the principal of the Deerfield-Shields Township high school orchestra, Mrs. Helen Mayer Mannings, who is a concert violinist, has consented to conduct violin classes. The first grammar school to accept this offer is Elm Place. A class has already been started, but it is not too late for pupils from the sixth, seventh and eighth grades to enroll. Violins can be secured at a very nominal figure which enables every child to take up the study of violin that is interested.

We are told that 30 million people are in their homes in America every evening listening to sound coming out of a small polished box, some say that no person who can be aesthetically satisfied by the turn of a knob will go out in the rain to hear an orchestra, band or choral society. The answer is this, if an individual has had a thrill in making music, he never will be satisfied with the turn of the knob. They are building habits of musical expression which are bound to function in similar activities in after school life.—Contributed.

Guy Maier, Pianist at Lake Forest Sat. Night

Saturday evening the second subscription concert of the Lake Forest School of Music will bring to Lake Forest the well known and widely hailed pianist, Guy Maier. The Boston Transcript says: "Mr. Maier sends one away feeling a different person; all sunshine within all smiles without." For his Lake Forest concert Mr. Maier has chosen a captivating program peculiarly suited to his gifts and one which will have an appeal for every sort of listener.

The Sewing club of the D. B. E. gave a baby shower yesterday afternoon (Wednesday) for the infant daughter of Mrs. Reuben Olson, at the home of Mrs. William Beere.

Mrs. Carl Odell entertained at luncheon and bridge on Tuesday for Miss Gwendolyn James whose marriage is to take place Saturday.
