Byrd to Speak Nov. 16 at Civic Opera House for Welfare Society

Admiral Richard E. Byrd, aerial conqueror of the North and South Poles, will be the guest of Chicago next month under the auspices of the Infant Welfare society, it was announced by Philip D. Armour, the society's president.

For the first time in public, in Chicago, the explorer will describe the adventures of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition and will exhibit his own motion pictures taken during the fourteen months on the ice and the dash over the South Pole. These pictures show episodes of the Antarctic exploit which have not hitherto been made public, and offer tangible evidence of some of the scientific work accomplished by the expedition.

Admiral Byrd will appear at the Civic Opera House Sunday evening, November 16. Following his address the gold medal of the Chicago Geographic society will be presented to him in recognition of his work in exploration.

All seats not reserved by subscribers to the Infant Welfare society will be offered to the general public. Mr. Armour said, and the proceeds will go to the society for the continuance of its work for the city's babies.

The society, which is now completing its twentieth year, maintains a permanent staff of 96 physicians, nurses and social workers who carry on activities at twenty-one stations scattered among the poorest sections of Chicago. It is nationally recognized as one of the foremost organizations of its kind in America.

According to census returns, Texas has nearly 60,000 more farms than she had in 1920. Well, Texas certainly has room for them.

"Bugs" Moran Caught at Bluff Lake Resort; Is Taken to Chicago

George "Bugs" Moran, once reputed to be a powerful Chicago gangster, but who has been out of the public eye since late last summer, early Tuesday was caught at the Elizabeth Cassidy resort on Bluff lake near Lake Villa by Constable George Stried, head of State's Attorney A. V. Smith's sponge squad.

Moran was released at noon Tuesday after he had appeared in two courts to face charges brought by the prosecutor. He gave bail of five thousand dollars before County Judge Perry L. Persons on an information charging him with carrying concealed weapons, and $5,000 before Justice Harold Tallett on charges of vagrancy.

Judge Persons set the case on the trial call that opens next Monday, while Justice Tallett set the other hearing for Monday afternoon. An information charging vagrancy is to be filed in county court later.

Taken to Chicago

As soon as Moran furnished surety through Joseph Oituskus he was taken to Chicago by Lieut. Phil Carroll of the detective bureau, where it was expected, he would be charged with vagrancy.

Attorney Claire C. Edwards of Edwards & Dady, counsel for Moran, was unable to stop the Chicago police from taking the defendant on the charge, because it is a misdemeanor and not a criminal action and can be brought in every county of the state at the same time, Col. Smith said.
