was Mayor Benjamin F. Lewis, who spoke in part as follows:

Mayor Talks

"It is indeed gratifying that Highland Park is to have this handsome new library building to round out the city's civic center. The corner stone to be laid today is foursquare and this fact brings to mind the knew that she would be most valuthought that the kind of knowledge to be gained through the contents of knowledge of the most modern and this library building is of that charerly as to workmanship and material; acter, substantial fundamental of the been most helpful. The mayor reflected the thought that everybody in Highland Park is ing which may be administered with pleased and gratified at the crection the greatest ease and efficiency by a of this fine building for so beneficial a purpose, and he congratulated all connected with the project.

The next speaker was Miss Anna May Price, who brought the facilitations of her department upon this notable event representing a great step in advance for the benefit of the people of Highland Park.

J. B. Garnett, chairman of the building committee, formally laid the corner stone as it was hoisted into place and following his address gave a list of the contents of both the receptacle taken from the corner stone of the old building and also of the new one which was placed in the stone then laid. He spoke as follows: Mr. Garnett's Address

Wolcott was president of the board. Already after less than 10 years the demands of our growing population and our rapidly increasing number of books had taxed the capacity of our former building. It is no reflection on the builders that this was so. At the time of its erection, our population was about 3,000, and the book capacity 10,000 volumes. In less than 10 years it had more than doubled. Now we are planning Highwood. for a potential population of 30 to volumes.

"We prepared plans and in 1927 went to the council for an appropriation. At this time I wish to thank Mayor Lewis and the council for their cooperation which has made this building possible. I also thank Mr. Millard for the park board. They have aided us in acquiring our site and by improving the corner they have given us a beautiful setting for our building. I wish also to thank Mr. Edward Laing for our beautiful green grass.

"From 1926 until the present year we have been thinking and planning for this building. When we engaged Miss Hendee for our librarian we able to us because of her special efficient library plans and she has Il classes and degrees of intelligence.

"A library should be easily accessible, close to the sidewalk with few ascending steps. It must be a buildsmall staff.

"In the course of our studies we visited other libraries of recent construction. We consulted the best authorities in the country on library buildings and submitted our plans to them for criticism.

"We demanded an exterior which should be beautiful and in harmony with its surroundings but at the same time home like and inviting.

"We are satisfied that our architects, Messers Holmes & Flinn have fu'filled these requirements.

In advertising for bids and letting the contracts we were mindful of three things: (1) a contractor best qualified to follow the instructions of our architects, (2) to save as much as possible for the tax payers and (3) to keep as much as possible of this money in Highland Park.

It developed that the E. L. Archibald Co. were the low bidders and $10,000 below conservative estimates of a year previous. They were strong financially and had done many splendid things of a similar type of construction. At our request they have rurchased a large portion of the building materials in Highland Park and over 50 per cent of the labor so far has come from Highland Park and
